Chiang Gives In

REALISM at last from that old stager, Chiang Kai-shek! For 10 years he and the Kuomintang survivors in Formosa have been preaching a return to the mainland. They implied a return by force — an invasion mounted, they hoped, with the help of the American Navy. But as the years passed with no more alarming evidence of their intentions than the same old catchery, the likelihood of another civil war evaporated.

Today Chiang Kai-shek admits it was never more than a paper tiger. He speaks now of "an ideological counter-invasion" and talks in terms of philosophy than guns and bullets. But in making the pronouncement, Chiang has formally repudiated the Nationalist cause, or diluted it to such an extent that the Kuomintang can no longer be regarded as a political force except in Formosa itself. It is doubtful if this will have any immediate or obvious repercussions. The Americans will continue to pour aid into the island, patrol the Straits and ensure its survival as a focal point of freedom for Chinese everywhere.

But Chiang's admission may herald important political and constitutional changes in Formosa in the years to come. The decline in KMT influence, the rise of a new generation of Chinese, anti-Communist but nevertheless detached from that disastrous era of mainland politics between the world wars and after, spell an interesting future for the island.

The presidential elections next year, preceded by the almost certain retirement of Chiang Kai-shek, promise to bring about the first important change which could very well end with what neither Communist nor Nationalist want, but which seems the only possible solution to the impasse — two universally recognized, Chinese Governments, each content with their own domains and tacitly agreeing to live and let live.

CHURCHES FILLED, NIGHTCLUBS PACKED AS COLONY CELEBRATES BIGGEST, BRIGHTEST, COLDEST THAT WAS HONGKONG'S CHRISTMAS

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

Christmas 1959 was one of Hongkong's biggest, brightest and coldest for many years.

Despite the cold snap thousands of people packed dozens of nightspots and functions into the early hours of Christmas morning and again today.

The Christmas was cold but the spirit was warm and more people than ever before celebrated Christmas in Hongkong this year.

Coldest reading for yesterday was at 8 p.m. when the temperature dropped to 50.4 degs.

Although official statistics were not available by the time the China Mail went to press this morning it is believed that yesterday was the coldest Christmas for many years.

Bumper Trade

Nightclubs and bars, as expected, experienced a "bumper" trade and crowds were still crammed in the hundreds at nightspots a few minutes before official closing time, which was extended an hour to 3 a.m. Police and service police report that apart from a few minor incidents there was very little trouble in the Colony. Hundreds of Chinese children set up flourishing businesses in both the island and Kowloon in the sale of firecrackers.

Big supplies were bought up by the European and service population and revelers were letting the firecrackers off till the early hours of today.

Midnight Church

Many European and Chinese families observed Christmas traditions and attended midnight church services on Christmas Eve. Churches were packed both for the midnight services and the Christmas Day services.

And judging by the sales of plum puddings and turkeys Hongkong must have had its biggest Christmas Dinner on record.

With business, entertainment and revelry at its peak, Christmas in Hongkong 1959 was a happy one.

PI Lifts Ban On Chinese

Manila, Dec. 25. The Philippines lifted a government-imposed ban on further Chinese entry today with the deportation of 29 Chinese nationals to Formosa.

Mr. K. H. Hwang, press counselor of the Nationalist Chinese Embassy here, said that the deportation was carried out "in a most orderly manner." He confirmed that the Foreign Office had informed the Embassy of the lifting of the 48-day-old ban on the entry of Chinese tourists, businessmen, relatives of Chinese permanent residents, and those with pre-arranged jobs.

DEPORTEES

The deportees arrived in Taipei tonight by plane. They were received by police officers of the provincial police administration when they stepped off into the chilly night, shivering in their sports shirts and light summer dresses. A spokesman of the police administration said the deportees will not be prosecuted or gaoled again for the same crimes they were punished for under Philippine law. He said they will all receive "some educational and vocational training" before they start their new life on Formosa. "We will take care of them for the time being," one officer told the press.—UPI.

HK Animal Lover Helps

Kessingland, Dec. 24. Two aged British horses, slated to die in the slaughterhouse, have received a reprieve from death for Christmas. An anonymous Hongkong animal lover recently sent £10 to the St Francis Fellowship to help buy the steeds, and keep them from the slaughterhouse.—UPI.

That Boxing Day Feeling...

Someone seems to have been taking the Christmas spirit so much to heart that it's gone to his head. But this is one boxer who doesn't need to worry about sympathy; at this time of year, in the doghouse or out of it, we know just how he feels.—Express photo.

Harrowing Stories Told By Survivors Of Stricken Ship

Manila, Dec. 24. Fourteen survivors from the 300-ton passenger vessel mv Rizal which sank at the height of typhoon Gilda last Saturday arrived here yesterday with harrowing stories of panic aboard the sinking ship and swimming to shore through shark-infested waters.

The mv Rizal with 107 passengers and crew aboard sank off the southwestern coast of Masbate Island in the central Philippines as typhoon Gilda swept across the area last week.

There were 14 confirmed dead and 27 others earlier reported missing have now been given up for dead as search operations for survivors were abandoned yesterday.

The survivors who arrived here told reporters the ship began to sink just after midnight on December 18. As the ship's captain, Daniel Casenas, gave the order to abandon ship, many passengers were knocked unconscious in the rush for the lifeboats.

SWEPT OVERBOARD
Other passengers jumped into the sea and began to swim for shore which was about 200 yards away. Mrs. Thelma Perez, aged 18, lost her one-year-old baby when they were both swept off the sinking ship by huge waves.

An Army corporal was seen swimming to shore holding an unidentified baby up but he lost the child in the struggle to reach shore.

Two crew members lost their lives fighting off attacking sharks. The 14 who arrived here are part of some 86 reported to have survived the sinking.—Reuters.

K Accepts

Moscow, Dec. 25. The Soviet Union has accepted the big three Western Powers invitation to attend a summit conference next spring, it was officially announced here today.

In accepting the Western proposals for summit talks, Mr. Nikita Khrushchev suggested either April 21 or May 4 for the first meeting of heads of government in Paris. The Western Powers had proposed April 27.—Reuters.

24 Killed In Mine Disaster

Welkom, Dec. 24. Twenty-four people were killed in a methane gas explosion in the President Steyn Gold Mine here yesterday, it was revealed today.

Their colleagues learned of the disaster while they were holding a big party to celebrate Christmas and their recent breaking of the world shaft-sinking record. The party broke up immediately.

The dead included two miners — Mr. Ken Bryson, 19-year-old son of a mine manager, and Mr. P. D. Sauer, the father of four children. All the others were non-whites.

A number of bodies, including that of Mr. Sauer, had still not been recovered today because the mine's ventilation has been disrupted. Rescue workers were trying to repair it.

Cause of the explosion is not known, an official announcement said.—Reuters.

Israeli Shot

Jerusalem, Dec. 24. An Israeli policeman was wounded today in a clash with Syrian forces, an Israeli Army spokesman announced.—Reuters.

Gruesome Find Sparks Big Manhunt

Birmingham, Dec. 24. Police ringed Birmingham today as the hunt intensified for a blood-stained killer who last night cut off the head of a woman at a local Young Women's Christian Association hostel.

Her headless, mutilated, and partly clothed body was found in a ten-by-six-foot cubicle by detectives called to investigate an attack on another girl at the hostel.

The dead woman was believed to be Sidney Stephanie Baird, aged 28, who has been staying at the hostel since August.

All Christmas eve leave was cancelled as the manhunt got under way.

Road blocks were set up, cars and lorries stopped and checked while police combed lodging houses in the city seeking a blond curly-haired man in his mid-twenties with "a hard face." Police said his clothing would "undoubtedly be bloodstained."

The second girl attacked, Miss Margaret Brown, aged 21, thought it was a joke when someone switched off the light as she was working in the hostel laundry.

Then she received a hard blow on her head and ran out screaming to raise the alarm.

Miss Brown was not seriously hurt. Her hair worn in the "bun" style was believed to have decided the blow.

Police hold a broken table knife which they think may be the weapon used.—Reuters.

Dietician Walks 373 Miles To Prove Her Point

London, Dec. 24. Cheering crowds greeted Dr Barbara Moore, Russian-born dietician when she arrived at Marble Arch, London, today after walking from Edinburgh, 373 miles away in seven days.

Traffic was held up as Dr Moore, her listeroid swollen feet encased in furlined boots tied up with sackings was whisked away in an ambulance.

On reaching the Arch, Dr Moore grasped a rail and bowed her head over it momentarily. Then she turned threw up her head and smiled at the cheering and singing crowd.

Police linked arms to prevent her from being mobbed.

Dr Moore 38 who left Edinburgh at noon last Thursday strode the last miles like a sleep-walker guarded by a circle of burly London policemen.

Dr Moore a vegetarian whose diet consists mainly of fruit and vegetable juices claims to have discovered the secret of renewing her youth.

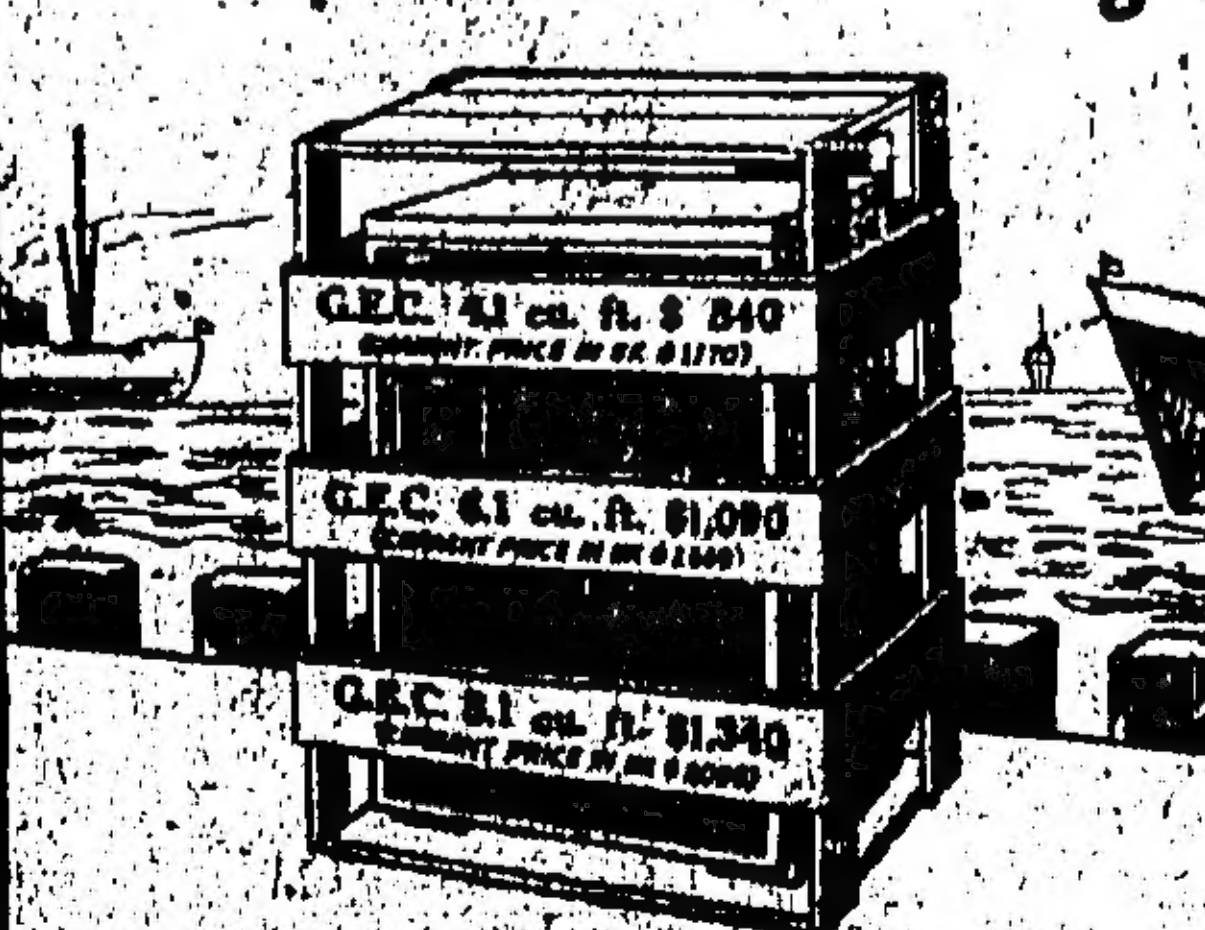

She has said she may live to be 200 and may have a baby when she is 100. One of her recipes for youthfulness is to "master sex urges". She has said that her husband Mr Harry Moore a pulpier shares her views.—China Mail Special.

FLYING ICE

London, Dec. 24. A block of ice smashed through the roof of a suburban London home tonight and landed in a room occupied minutes earlier by an infant. Police said the ice block may have fallen from an airplane. The ice tore a hole five feet by three in the roof of the home of Mr and Mrs Archibald Glazebrook.—UPI.

FILMS CURRENT & COMING

by ANTHONY FULLER

"BELOVED INFIDEL" (ROXY & BROADWAY) is a film taken from the book of the same name written by Shellah Graham. Shellah Graham, who was born Lily Shell in the east end of London, gives her account of the last few years of the tragic playboy genius of the 1920s, Scott Fitzgerald.

Shellah Graham entered Scott Fitzgerald's life when he was already a broken man, a confirmed alcoholic, a disheveled genius. Neither had Shellah Graham the sensitivity of spirit necessary to penetrate into the dark drink sodden recesses of Scott's mind. But her account is valuable in the superficial sense. She put down, after careful editing, just what Fitzgerald did in her company. And he was in her company quite a lot.

Now 20th Century-Fox have made "Beloved Infidel" into a film, using CinemaScope and colour by De Luxe.

Gregory Peck was selected to portray Fitzgerald. There is not a scrap of physical resemblance. Jerry Wald, the producer, knew that, but he was after a sensitive actor, and taking it all round, I consider that Wald was quite right. Fitzgerald physically was one of many, Fitzgerald spiritually was one out on his own.

Deborah Kerr is a Shellah Graham type, but infinitely more refined and less brittle. But in fairness to Shellah Graham, she literally dragged herself out of the slums of London by her shoelaces. She became a nationally known journalist in the States by sheer catfist and mud slinging. The women film stars hated her.

Well now, the film starts off by taking all this granted. You arrive at that stage where Fitzgerald is about to receive the biggest hiding Hollywood ever handed to a genius novelist. Obviously, in writing, Shellah Graham gave herself the best of it, and 20th Century-Fox gives the motion picture industry the best of it, so honesty compels me to say that, but for a few incidents, we do not get Scott Fitzgerald. On the other hand, we get a rather good portrayal of Shellah Graham. For in the years she gave to Fitzgerald she was unselfish, sacrificing, and self-effacing. She must have loved him with every nerve in her body, for this love affair was quite out of character for her.

It was Hollywood that finally broke Scott Fitzgerald, and unfortunately, the big scenes are omitted out of loyalty, I presume, to the film industry.

It was Walter Wanger who engaged Fitzgerald to work on a "film" described by Budd Schulberg in "The Disenchanted," who dismasted Fitzgerald. The latter, discouraged and feeling humiliated at having to work on a meagre assignment, went on an aimless blind. The film is weakened by leaving out this scene, plus the language and opinion of the internationally known producer.

The film answers no questions. It does not say why a man with such gifts and a genius which earned him a fortune in his twenties, deliberately threw it all away.

Little is hinted of his poor tragic wife Zelda, by this time a patient in a mental home. She was Scott's first and last love. The girl for whom he wrote his first best seller. The woman for whom he struggled when his life was broken at forty.

Gregory Peck does get Scott Fitzgerald in some of the drunk scenes; he also gets him in such incidents of strange generosity when Fitzgerald just had to be used by other people.

What Gregory Peck cannot get is Scott, quoting Scott's own words, in the mood he described as 3 o'clock in the morning, that being the title of a popular song of that period. Scott said, "In the depression of the spirit, it is always three o'clock in the morning of the soul."

Shellah Graham has captured but one facet of his strange genius; Budd Schulberg another; Edmund Wilson another. But none ever quite understood why Scott squandered his genius, went on the drunk with Zelda for weeks at a time in Paris and south of France.

The answer is, Fitzgerald was drinking to escape. And he never did escape. His Catholic heritage breathes in every word of his prose. His tragedy was he tried to deny what he believed. He tried to become a puritan pagan, for nowhere in his sensitive prose is there one line that gives offence.

He travelled the world, but he was always weary. For he knew he looked for that which could not be found in the places he searched. "Beloved Infidel" gives us fascinating glimpses of this man. It gets more of Scott Fitzgerald on the screen than any previous attempt. A film of fascinating proportions, at once interesting, entertaining, and within its limits, a fine film biography.

"FOLLOW A STAR" (LEE & ASTOR) brings Norman Wisdom back to Hongkong in another crazy episode of Norman, the little man, tilting at the windmills of the rich, domineering, and powerful. A certain journalist in London, writing in a recent article, attributes Norman Wisdom's rising international fame to a political slant.

That is, of course, sheer undiluted nonsense. I can assure you that Norman Wisdom could not care less about politics. In fact, I have never met anyone who has climbed the ladder of success so quickly, and yet remained so pleasantly himself.

And what is Norman? He is essentially the little man, the good tempered guy who will stand for so much, and then... has not! Success has not swelled his head, and when you congratulate him, as I did for his film opening to record business in Hongkong, he gazed quizzically to see who was pulling whose leg.

"Follow A Star" has a lot of Norman in it. The opening gag which suggests the engine room of a doomed liner is a leg-pull de luxe.

"Follow A Star" has plenty of slapstick, good whole hearted fun, and more than a touch of whimsy.

Norman Wisdom as Norman Truscott, a hero worshipping valet service assistant, is just Norman. Whistful, self-effacing, shy, and timid, he is the lawful prey of the exploiter.

June Laverick as Judy, his pretty devoted cripple friend, is charming in the role of the girl who inspires Norman with confidence.

Jerry Desmond, hams intentionally, the role of faded star Vernon Carew, while Hattie Jacques gives a performance as good as that she gave at the Lee and Astor last Christmas when rolling in the aisles.

"Follow A Star" puts the "Merrie" in "Christmas."

"DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIP" (KING'S & PRINCESS) is a field day for Jerry Lewis, with a Christmas stocking full of new gags which prevent him, as a newly wed naval officer, from spending his honeymoon night with Diana Spencer, his eager bride.

Strangely enough, the U.S. Navy gets in on the gag by throwing all its forces at the disposal of the film, which finishes up with a force to ever hit the screen.

The fun and frolics soar as high as a Congressional investigation Committee, with an indignant Admiral anxious to discover the whereabouts of U.S.S. KORNBLATT which Lewis left around somewhere at the end of World War II.

If Jerry Lewis enters the crazy compounds of this hysterical world, so do the competent characters assembled to learn up with him. For instance, attractive Dina Merrill as an Intelligence Officer; Mickey Shaughnessy, all in wrestler but once a Petty Officer serving with Lewis; Robert Strauss, the language, and we are back in the days when Tarzan could not speak, and when he really thought his mother was an ape. Joanna Barnes, no newcomer to the screen is Jane, the ape man's beloved.

The story revolves around Jane and her father, Robert Douglas, seeking for the elephants' burial ground, where a fortune in ivory awaits the daring hunter.

Thrilling highlights include the burning of a village by some very angry looking natives; a sequence in which Tarzan rescues Jane from the feet of an irritable elephant; and a terrific scene showing Tarzan rescuing the rash hunter from a native tile, performed among the ruins of an ancient city, and something that has to do with searing flames and boiling oil.

It is not all thrills, however, for there are moments of fun when two extremely educated monkeys act the humans out of the picture. (They will delight the kids.)

There is also a touch of romance when Tarzan takes Jane to his tree top home, and the only thing that stops him getting rough is that Jane recites the twenty-third Psalm at or to him, which quiets him down more than somewhat. However, apart from that rather ludicrous, and if I may say so, an interpolation in bad taste, the film is the best of the Tarzan series for years.

The cast is well chosen, they are completely adequate for a film of this type. Another newcomer in a sort of sinister role, Cesare Danova, does very well in this film so well suited to the holiday season. MGM film made in Technicolor.

"SAGA OF THE VAGABONDS" (METRO-POLE) is a Japanese film from the studios of the great Toho Motion Picture Company, made in TohoScope and Eastman Colour.

This film takes us back to Japan's troubled feudal period when the War Lord Hojo ruled the Kanto area, and it was the business of his retainers to collect taxes and contribute to the war chest.

The first incident of the film shows a retainer sending his son along with the money, but the son gets waylaid by a band of roving robbers.

From then on it is all action. Officialdom refuses to believe that the son has been robbed, but the robber chieftain, a kind of Robin Hood turns up in time to clear the son and return the money.

Romance of course, enters a film of this type, with the inevitable sad and sentimental finale.

The film is beautifully made, the camera does some lovely work, and the direction is skilful.

Takashi Shimura and Koji Yuxuta head the cast with the beautiful Misa Uehara as Princess Koyuki.

DOCK COMPANY HAS TO PAY TAX ON SALVAGE EARNINGS

Mr Justice J. R. Gregg, Senior Puisne Judge, held at the Supreme Court on Thursday that an earlier Inland Revenue Board of Review's decision that the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock, Co. Ltd. did not have to pay tax on $402,813.80 earned from a salvage operation, was wrong.

The Main Cause Of Road Accidents

Most accidents are caused by lack of consideration for others, impatient driving and bad manners, Mr. A. Morrison, Senior Superintendent of Traffic said on Thursday.

He was speaking at the presentation of safe driving awards to locally employed service personnel and civilian Navy drivers at the Motor Transport Section of the Naval Base.

Commodore G. D. A. Gregory, Commodore-in-charge, presented the awards to 33 successful entrants to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents National Safe Driving competition.

Mr Morrison said, "Your record has shown that each and every one of you is capable of preventing road accidents and helping to make the use of the roads in this Colony safe and convenient for all."

"Unfortunately in Hongkong there are too many who do not appreciate that this is a moral duty, and that we should observe the rules of proper road conduct at all times, the important issues being that of tolerance and consideration."

Ex-Japanese Premier In Hongkong

Mr Shigeru Yoshida, former Japanese Prime Minister, and nine members of his good will mission to Australia, New Zealand and Southeast Asia, arrived yesterday from Manila by PAL for a two-day visit.

Mr Yoshida, who was three times Prime Minister, and who signed the 1951 San Francisco Peace Treaty for Japan, was met at the airport by Mr Y. Ando, Japanese Consul-General, Mrs Ando, Captain J. F. Bunnell, ADC to the Governor, and Mr C. M. MacLehose, Political Adviser to the Hongkong Government.

They will dine with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek on Monday. They will return to Tokyo on Tuesday.

Death Of Old China Hand

A well-known old China hand, Mr Charles Edward Peacock, died on Christmas morning.

He was 71 and had spent a lifetime in the Far East. He came to China in 1908 to work for Arnhold, Karberg, & Co in Shanghai. He worked in Canton, Changsha, Hankow and Tientsin and retired in 1950.

He returned a year later and became a Director of Arnhold Trading Co. Ltd. and took up a position in Shanghai. He stayed there until 1954. He then left China for a second time.

But the lure of the East brought him back again. During the summer he suffered a stroke. He was planning to return to England next year and spend his retirement with his three sisters. Mr Peacock was a bachelor.

Nearly 10,000 Births A Month

Births registered in November totalled 9,536, including 9,459 Chinese and 77 non-Chinese. Deaths registered in November totalled 1,431, including 1,410 Chinese and 21 non-Chinese.

Churches Licensed For Marriages

The Ling Liang Church, of 40A, Leighton Road, Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Yuen Long, and the Holy Carpenter Church at No. 1 Dyer Avenue, Hung Hom, have been licensed to be places for the celebration of marriages.

He ordered that the case stated be remitted to the Board of Review with the direction that the assessment confirmed by the Commissioner of Inland Revenue be restored with full force and effect as from the date of its annulment.

There was no order as to costs. The Commissioner of Inland Revenue had earlier refused an appeal by the Company, that they did not have to pay tax on the profits of a successful salvage operation they had carried out in the Parcel Islands in 1956, when they had recovered the mv Bintang.

Wrong Test

The Company appealed to the Board of Review, who upheld the appeal, and then the Inland Revenue Department made their appeal to the Supreme Court. Giving his decision, Mr Justice Gregg said he felt the Board had applied the wrong test to the facts before them, and gave the wrong meaning to "operations".

The company, he said, kept all their plant and equipment in the Colony including tugs and salvage experts. Their salvaging services were set in motion by a telephone arrangement made by the respondents with the owners of the vessel on January 27, 1956, in Hongkong.

Done In HK

It was the respondents' establishment of a salvaging organisation in Hongkong that made the salvage operations and the salvage profits possible.

There was in his mind, no doubt that the whole of the salvaging operations came to be done primarily as a result of business transacted in the Colony by a company maintaining a salvaging organisation in Hongkong.

HOMESIDE PICTORIAL

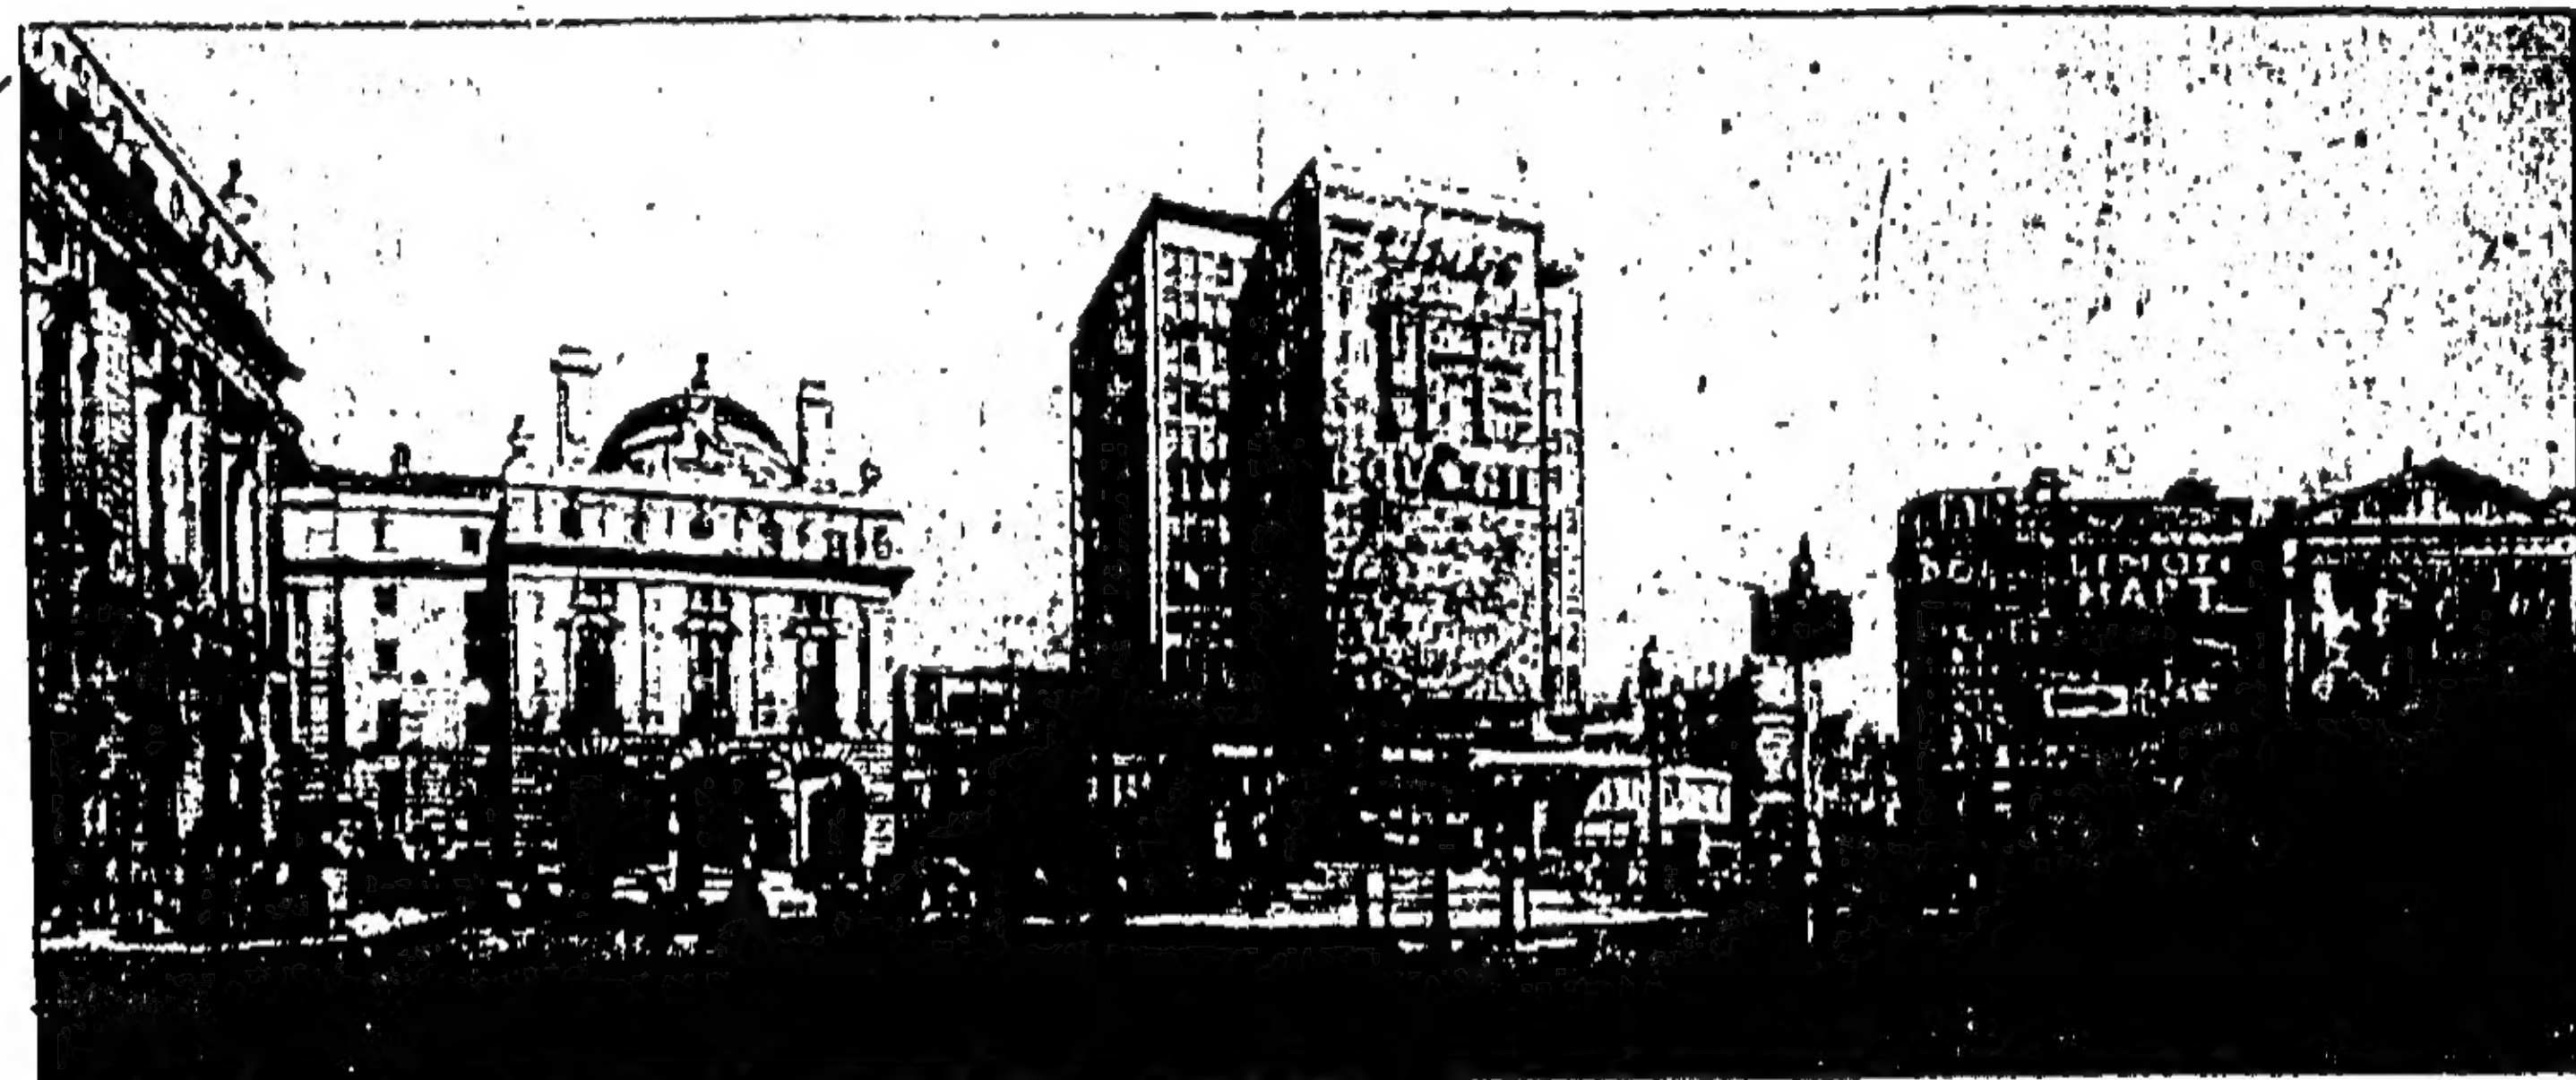

ABOVE: Olive-skinned Tommy Beecher, 2, whose British parents were ordered out of South Africa for adopting him, recently arrived with them at London Airport. The Beechers adopted him when he was found abandoned in a Cape Town church; then local officials decided he was coloured, and ordered: "Give up the child or go home." So they came home, the £600 air fares paid by father Frank's old union, The Amalgamated Society of Woodworkers, to his old job at Epsom. They have two other children.

ABOVE: Five Malayan girls, members of the Cultural Society of Malaya, give a display of Malayan dancing at the Crane Theatre, Liverpool, England. The dance was performed during a programme of music and dancing from the Commonwealth countries given at the Crane Theatre in connection with Liverpool's Commonwealth Week, recently inaugurated by Princess Margaret.

ABOVE: Splashing their way through a 5-foot deep pond during the British Army Mechanical Transport championship at Bordon in Hampshire are two drivers with their specially waterproofed "Champ" vehicles. The championship—the British Army's "Grand National on Wheels"—was held to find the champion driver of the British Army. Eliminating contests brought down the total of competitors to eight. The Champion driver was Warrant Officer Asbury of the Royal Army Service Corps.

ABOVE: They used to call it the hub of the Empire. Today it's still the hub of the Commonwealth—which is why the proposed plan for the redevelopment of Piccadilly Circus has created so much fuss that a public inquiry is being held by the Ministry of Housing. Or rather the lack of a plan; for the chief criticism has been launched against the LCC for allowing a private firm to build a 172-foot high tower block which most architectural experts have condemned as a monstrosity. Picture shows an artist's impression of the proposed block in situ.

ABOVE: British film clown Norman Wisdom seen at a special Press lunch given in his honour at the Dorchester this month by Mr John Davis of the Rank Organisation, preceding the Press show of Norman's new film, "Follow A Star."

ABOVE: After years of hard work by character actor Bernard Miles, raising funds by public subscription, his Mermaid Theatre, first in the City of London since Shakespeare's day, is now well in the black. The other night Miles himself appeared to star in the Theatre's Christmas production of "Treasure Island" as Long John Silver—accompanied by a parrot called Jack Sprat who has been his inseparable companion ever since he was bought six weeks ago.

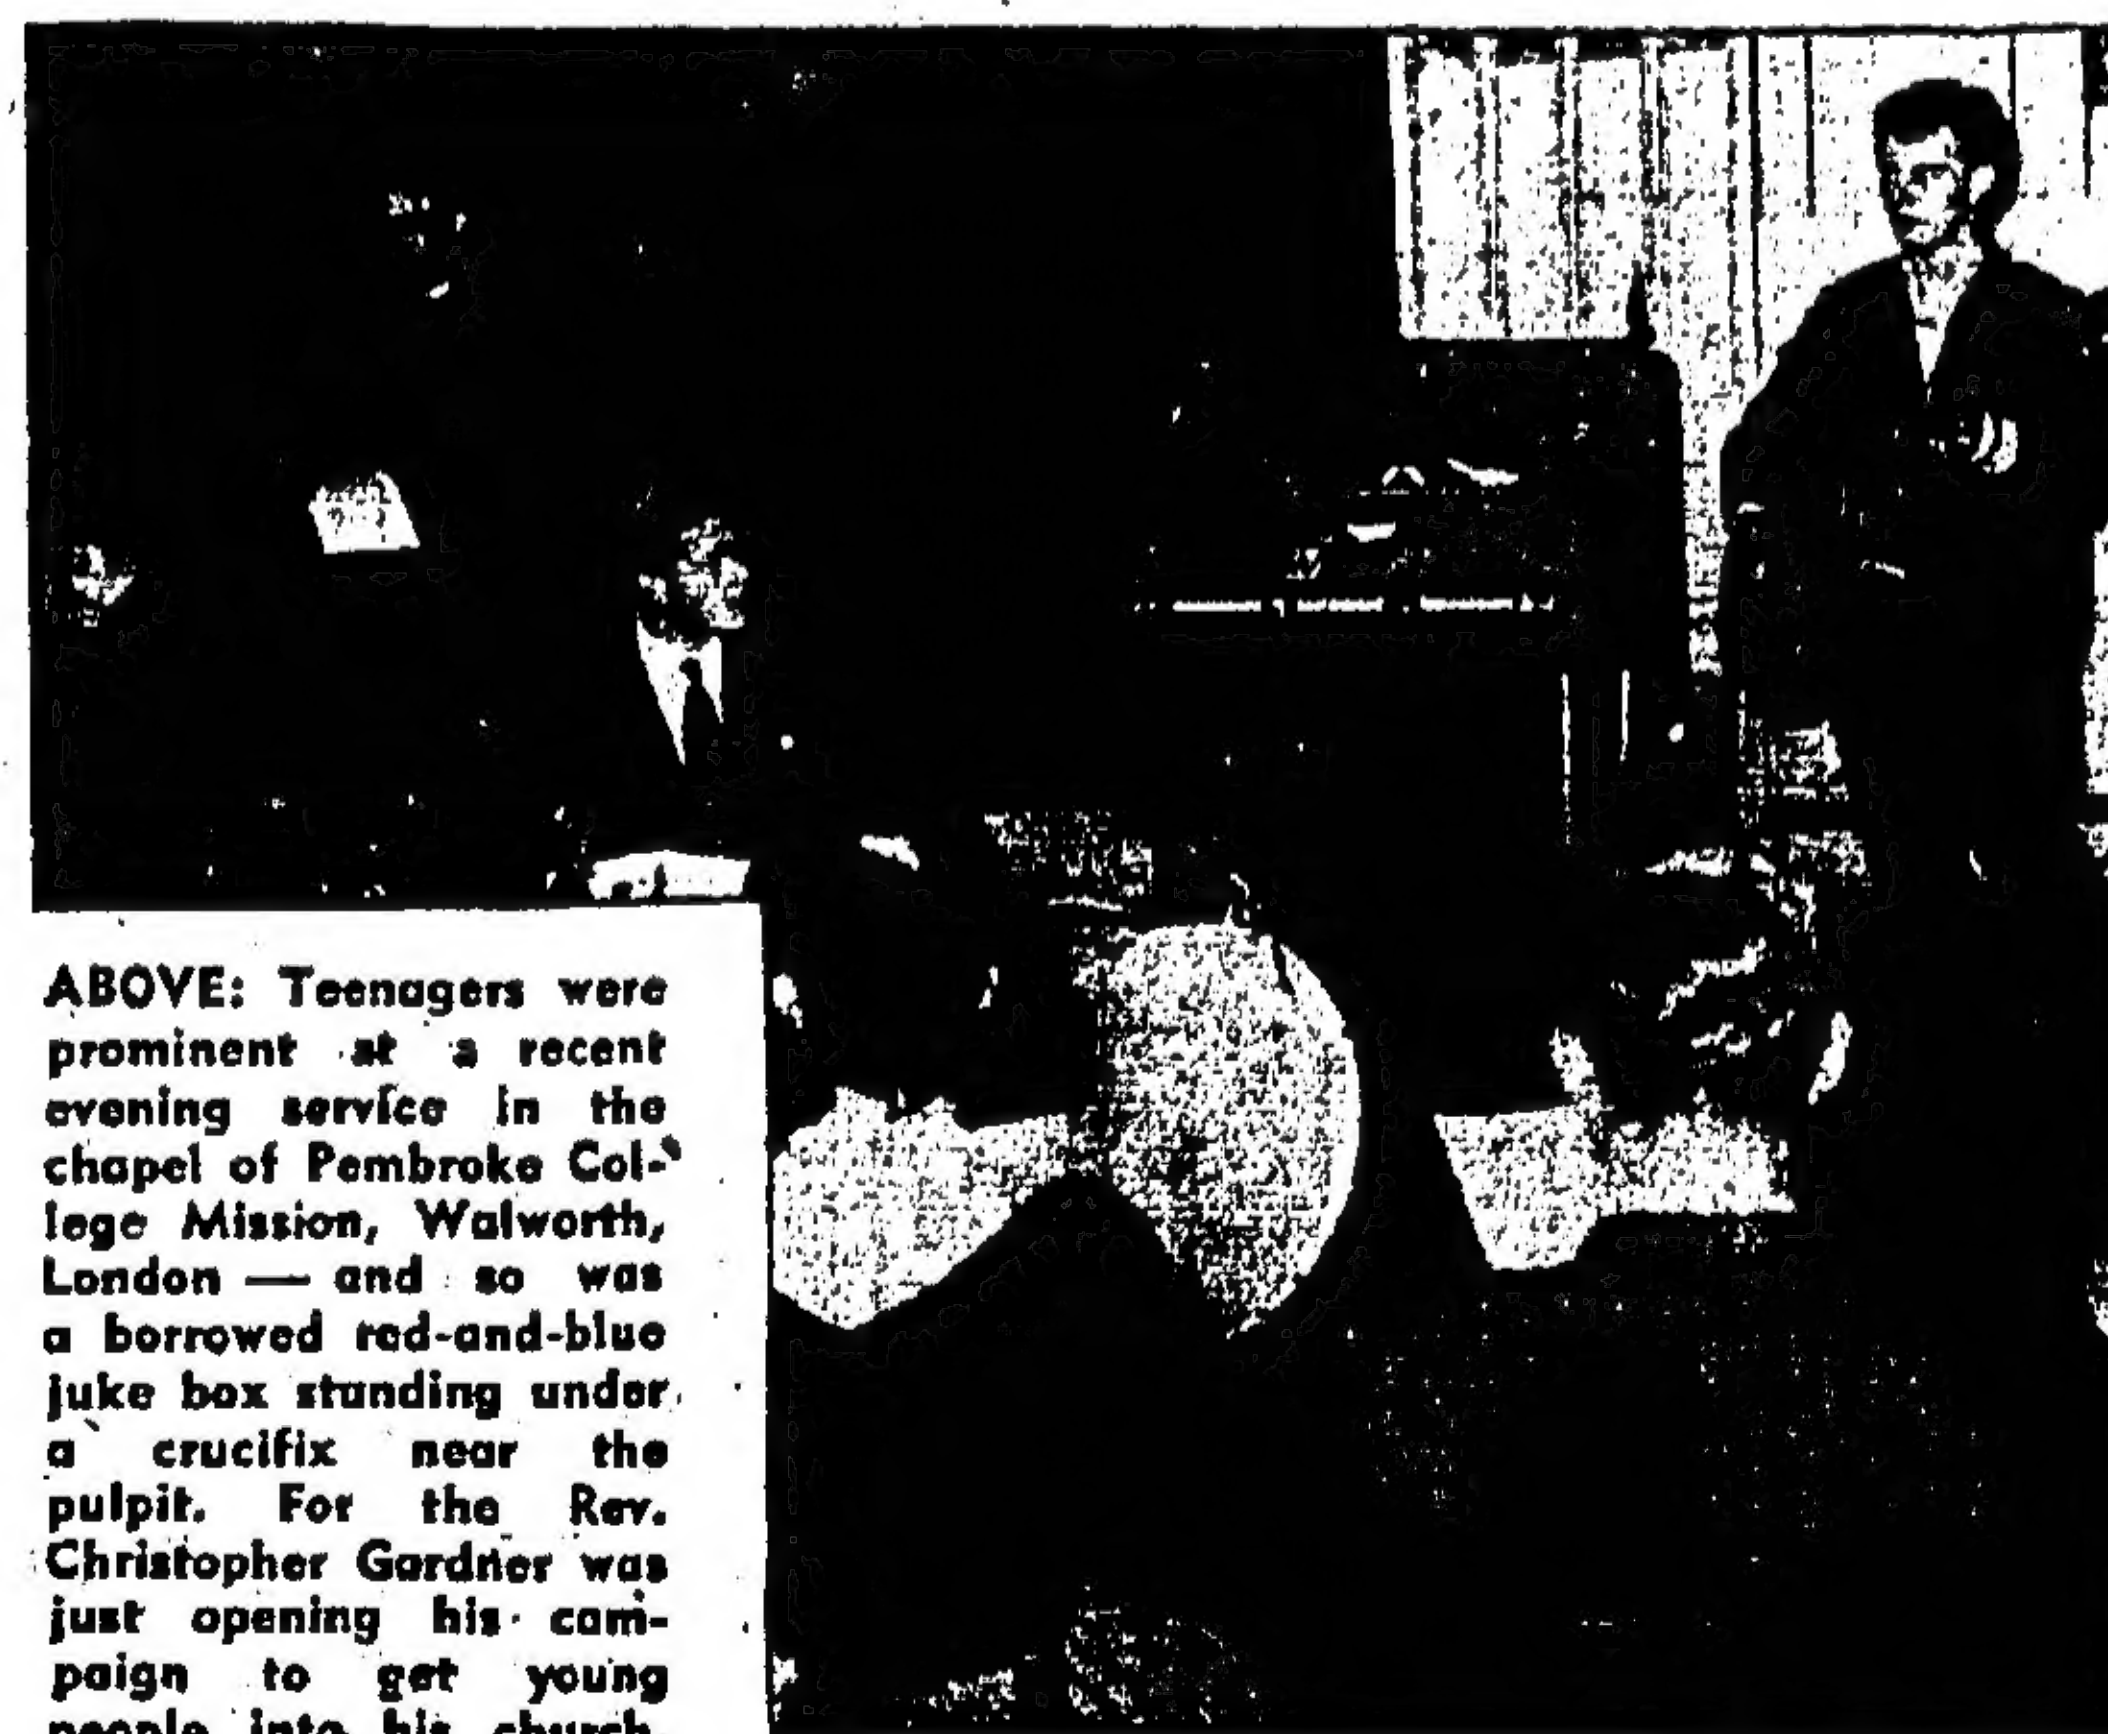

ABOVE: Pretty Private Pat Kelly grins across a pile of Christmas mail at the Home Postal Depot, Royal Engineers (Sorting Office) in London. This is the Army's Mount Pleasant, and it is thought that during the festive season some 20,000 bags of airmail and 150,000 bags of surface mail were despatched to 65 overseas destinations.

A gracious welcome to your guests

*More & more people are drinking
DRY FLY SHERRY*

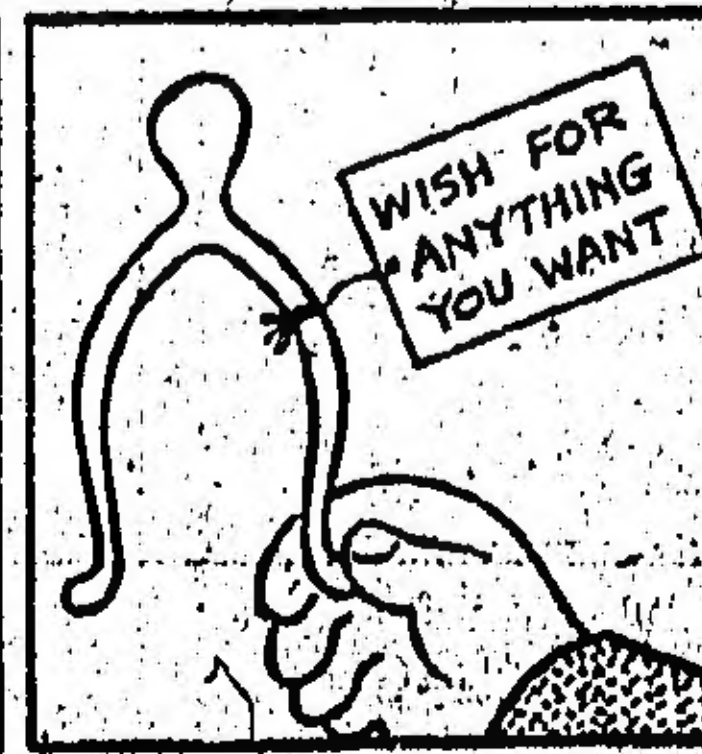

ABOVE: Teenagers were prominent at a recent evening service in the chapel of Pembroke College Mission, Walworth, London—and so was a borrowed red-and-blue juke box standing under a crucifix near the pulpit. For the Rev. Christopher Gardner was just opening his campaign to get young people into his church, with a m o n g other things, modern rock 'n' roll hymns. As well as the juke-box, with records of rock 'n' roll hymns written by Anglican monk Father Geoffrey Beaumont, there was also 18-year-old pop star Gary Mills singing hymns like "Living Lord," "A Big Story is Breaking," and "The Great I Am." Instead of the usual dozen or so, the congregation was around 200—but two middle-aged women walked out.

ABOVE: Looking for Christmas presents in a London store is Princess Grace of Monaco. What did she buy? Tea towels and handkerchiefs. Her companion paid for them and they went away again—completely unnoticed (except by the cameraman).

REDIFFUSION

MUSICAL FEATURING WELL-KNOWN PIANIST

Tonight at 9.30 Rediffusion is presenting the first of thirteen musical programmes by Semprini, the well-known pianist.

One of the BBC's most popular musical shows, "Semprini Serenade" features music which includes "Old ones, new ones, loved ones and neglected ones." Along with Semprini, listeners will hear the BBC Revue Orchestra, conducted by Harry Rabinowitz with leader Anthony Gilbert.

Tomorrow at 9.00 p.m. Rediffusion is presenting "The Story of a Statue," the 4th programme in the BBC series of "Famous Trials." "The Story of a Statue" is a reconstruction of the famous trial "Belt v Lawes." The principal parts are played by Ronald Baddley, Alan McClelland, Carleton Hobbs and Norman Shelley, with James McKechnie as narrator. "The Story of a Statue" was produced for the BBC by Joe Burroughs.

With the approach of the New Year, Rediffusion is presenting a number of programmes which bid farewell to the old year and usher in the New Year in a spirit of reminiscence.

At 9 o'clock on New Year's Eve, Ray Anthony and his Orchestra will play some bright and Blue tunes of 1959. On January 1, a programme entitled "New Year's Day" will be broadcast at 8.30 a.m. and "Hello 1960" has been scheduled for 10.30 a.m. "Old Thoughts for a New Year," a programme recalling old favourites and events of the past year will be heard at 9.00 p.m. on New Year's Day.

There will be two editions of Track Talk this week to cover the 6th Race Meeting on January 1 and 2. Tips for the two 'days' racing will be given at 7.30 p.m. on Thursday and Friday.

TWO OUTSIDE RELAYS
ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

After a few days of comparative peace and quiet following the Christmas holiday, New Year's Eve comes upon us. It is customary all over the world for radio stations to repeat extracts from some of their feature programmes of the year on this night.

New Year's Eve finds Commercial Radio only just over four months old so we run over our span of life in a half hour programme at 10.30 p.m. modestly called Our Short Year. This is followed by the BBC Radio Newsreel relayed from Radio Hongkong, and then those of you who have decided to spend New Year's Eve at home can hear how the last minutes of 1959 are being spent at two of the Colony's leading night spots.

From 11.15 Nick Kendall will be describing the festivities and introducing the music of Celso Carrillo and his band from the Highball Nightclub, Nathan Road. At 11.45 the microphone is transferred to the floor below where John Wallace will be broadcasting from the Golden Phoenix. The music of Ponching Gracia's Quartet and the singing of Luz Vi Minda can be heard.

1960 is brought in by John Wallace and at 12.15 we return to the studios for a New Year's Dance Party specially presented by Bob Williams.

New Year's Eve is a greater occasion in Scotland than anywhere else, and so at 10 p.m. Scottish listeners have a programme specially designed for Hogmanay.

TELEVISION
AN OUTSTANDING FILM
WILL BE SHOWN

Two famous Anns share the highlights in tonight's television programme.

At 8.35 p.m. Ann Sothorn will be on hand to brighten the evening with another of her exploits as Susie Macnamara, the most unusual but lovable of secretaries who provides most of the entertainment in the entertainment agency in which she works.

"Susie" is one of the most popular shows on international television and it seems certain that this second series in Hongkong will win the same acclaim as the first.

The second Ann is Ann Sheridan who joins with Richard Carlson, Robert Armstrong and Marsha Hunt at 9.45 p.m. in a topical and seasonal story called "Winter Carnival."

One of the outstanding films of the age is scheduled in Sunday Showtime at 9.20 p.m. tomorrow night and one of the biggest television audiences of the week will sit down to enjoy the almost legendary performances of Dirk Bogarde, Kenneth More, Donald Sinden, Kay Kendall, Muriel Pavlow and bearded James Robertson-Justice in J. Arthur Rank's "Doctor in the House."

The year 1959 was in many ways a memorable one for Hongkong.

Every day of the year the Television Newsreel cameramen have been out and about filming community events and pictorially reporting the work and relaxation of the Colony's citizens and distinguished visitors.

Next Thursday evening from 8.20 to 9 o'clock Rediffusion will be "Looking Back" in a selected retrospect of 1959.

RADIO HONGKONG 860 kcs 370m NEW YEAR BROADCAST FROM VARIOUS POINTS

Many of our listeners may remember that last year, for the first time, Radio Hongkong saw out the old and heralded in the new with a complicated outside broadcast link-up.

This New Year's Eve those of you who aren't yourselves making merry elsewhere will be able to tune in at 11.15 on the last night of the year for a one-hour round-up of commentaries and interviews from five points in the Colony—the Foreign Correspondents' Club, the Paramount Restaurant, the L.R.C., the Kowloon Cricket Club, and of course the traditional firing of the Jardine's Gun at East Point at midnight.

Ted Thomas, the producer of "Ring Out The Old" will be in touch with commentators Nancy Wise, Bill Dordward, Timothy Birch, Mike Baldwin and Michael Bulmer at the various nightspots from the centre of operations in Radio Hongkong's studios.

The end of one year and the beginning of another is as much a time for reminiscence as for looking into the future and more than one of Radio Hongkong's programmes about this time do just that.

Examples are "The Year of Sport" tonight at 8.30. In place of the usual weekly "Sportscast" this provides a flashback over the past year to spotlight the highlights of sporting activity in 1959—in Hongkong and elsewhere. The programme is in the hands of the "Sportscast" team: Ted Thomas producing and Michael Baldwin editing.

"This Year", on the other hand, concentrates on news items of 1959 and is, in fact, an omnibus "This Week". Timothy Birch and Ted Thomas are together responsible for its production and the result of their work—a reflection in sound of events in and out of Hongkong during the past year—goes on the air at 7.15 on December 31.

THE QUEEN'S XMAS MESSAGE

FOR YOU—BRAEMAR!

Mother Receives Her Best Gift

Oakville, Dec. 25. An Oakville woman who thought her son had been killed in the Pacific during the World War II received the best possible Christmas gift when he walked into her home here.

Mrs. Rose Gilbert was at home alone on Christmas eve, wrapping gifts, when she heard a knock at the door and opened it to see the son she thought had died in 1944.

"It's a good thing I have a strong heart," she said. "It's unbelievable, I just can't believe it."

Mrs. Gilbert wept as she embraced her son, Eddy Emond, 39, who was reported lost when the U.S. carrier Lexington was sunk in the South Pacific 15 years ago.

Eddy had been trying for years to find his mother who had moved several times since the war.—AP.

TUC PROPOSES TRADE BAN

London, Dec. 23. Organized British labour has called for a one-month boycott of South African goods to protest the Union government's racial policies.

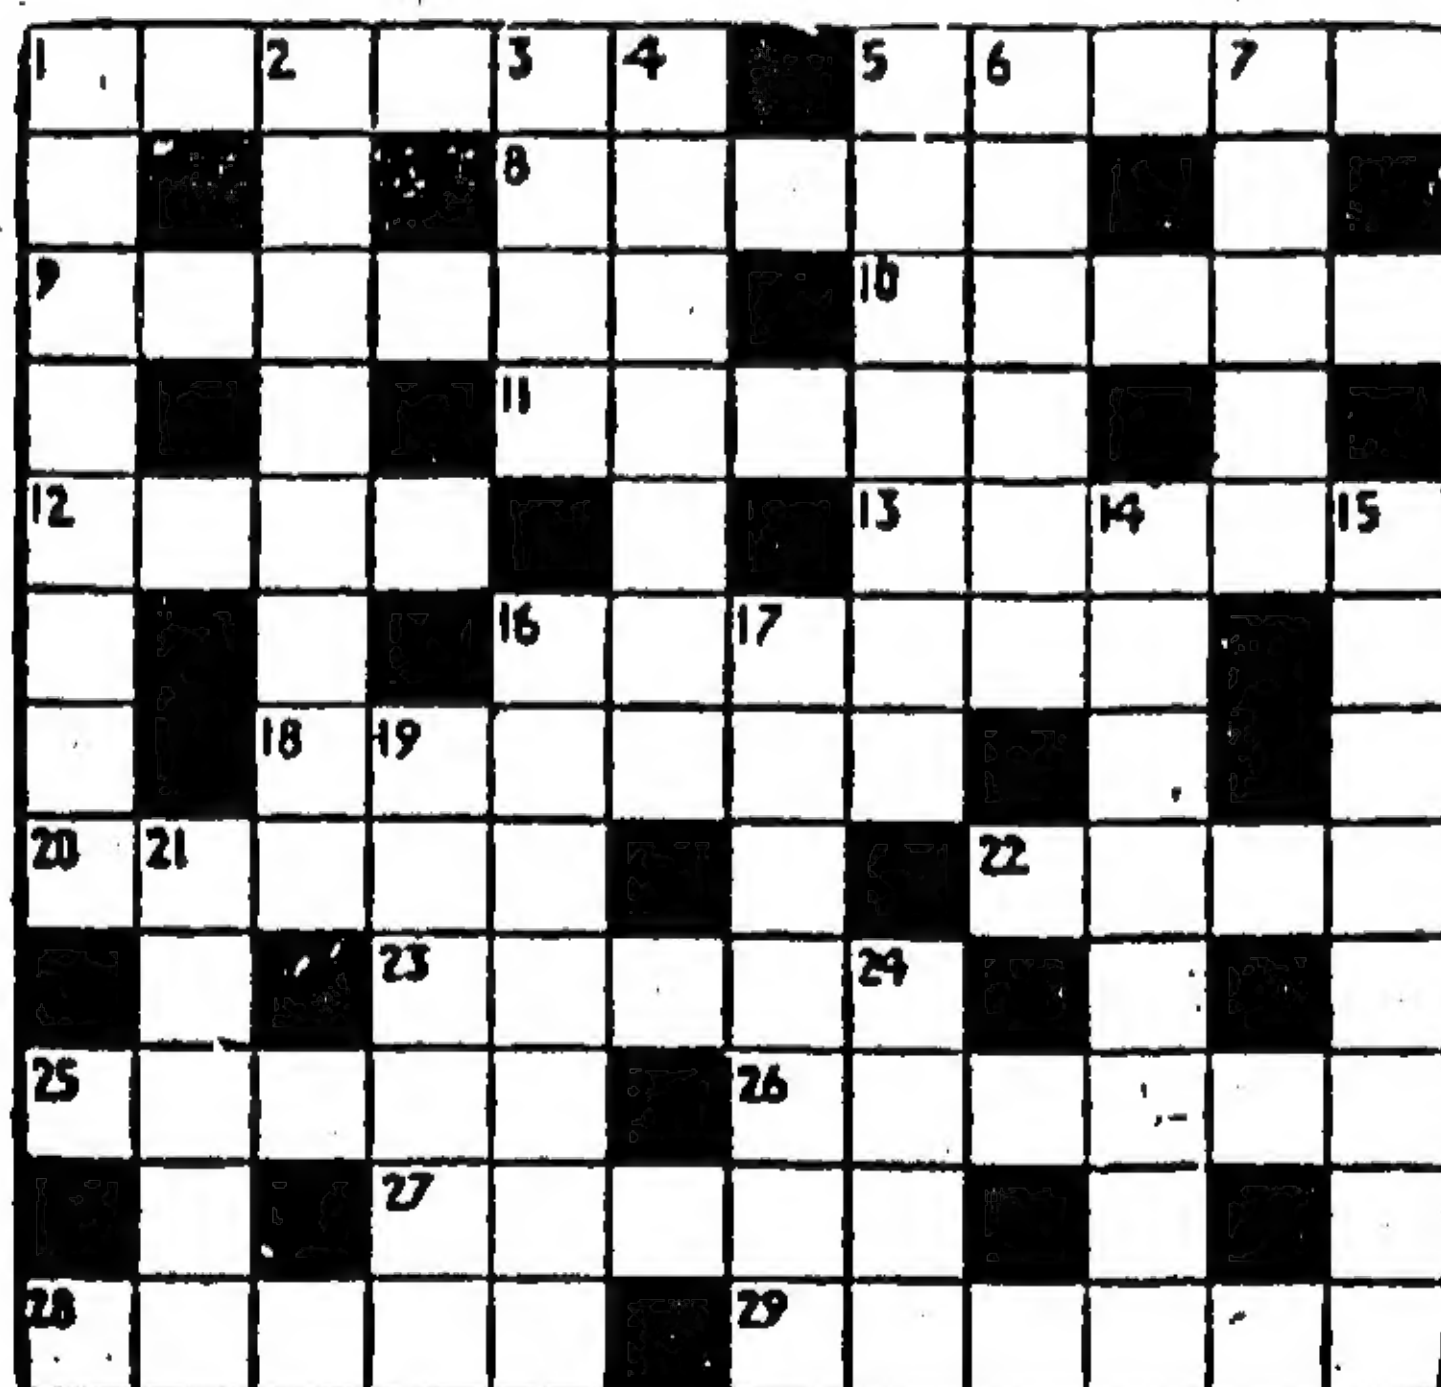

The general council of the Trade Union Congress (TUC), which claims to represent 8,600,000 British trade unionists, announced today that it will propose the boycott "to express their personal revulsion against the racial policies being pursued by the government of South Africa in the political, social and industrial fields." The boycott date will be announced after consultation with the Labour Party.—UPI.

13 Killed In Train Crash

Freelton, Dec. 25. Thirteen people were killed and 20 injured when a crowded train crashed after jumping the rails at a curve at Bayview, 58 miles from here yesterday, according to reports received here today.

The reports said four carriages of the train were turned over, trapping many passengers.—Reuter.

Greeting To Peoples Of Commonwealth

London, Dec. 25. Queen Elizabeth today assured the people of the Commonwealth of her "constant interest and affection" in her shortest Christmas Day message ever.

The 33-year-old Queen who is expecting her third child early in the New Year, spoke only 126 words in the traditional broadcast heard all over the world.

The text of the message, recorded eight days ago at Buckingham Palace, was:

"I do not want Christmas to pass by without sending my best wishes for a happy day to all of you who may be listening, and especially to my own people in the Commonwealth."

"Wherever you are and whatever you may be doing you have my constant interest and affection."

"I am particularly grateful to the many kind people all over the world who have sent me their good wishes at this time."

"I am glad to have this chance to thank you all very warmly indeed."

"As the old year passes, let us celebrate Christmas with thanksgiving and carry its message of peace and goodwill into the year ahead."

"All of us at Sandringham wish you a very happy Christmas. May God bless you all."

The Queen, who is spending a very quiet family Christmas at Sandringham, did not appear before television cameras this year.

Two other members of the Royal Family are celebrating their birthdays today at Sandringham as guests of the Queen. They are her aunt, the Duchess of Gloucester, aged 58, and her 23-year-old cousin, Princess Alexandra of Kent.

Also in the Sandringham house party are the Duke of Edinburgh, the Prince of Wales and Princess Anne, the Queen's daughter, aged 16.

Margaret, the Duke of Gloucester and his sons Prince William and Prince Richard, the Duchess of Kent and her other children the Duke of Kent and Prince Michael.

At Sandringham the Queen and other members of the Royal family attended morning service at the parish church here today.—Reuter.

White Christmas

New York, Dec. 24. Snow covered wide areas in the northern half of the U.S. today.

The heaviest snowfalls of the season hit the Midwest on Wednesday, dumping up to a foot and more of snow from the northern plains to the great lakes.—AP.

Pilgrims Visit Manger In Bethlehem

Bethlehem, Dec. 25. Visitors from the East knelt and prayed quietly before the figure of an infant in swaddling clothes lying in a manger in Bethlehem as Christmas morning dawned.

They were Christians from Poland, India, the Philippines, who joined thousands of other pilgrims in attending Christmas services in Bethlehem.

At midnight Christmas Mass began in St. Catherine's Church adjoining the ancient Church of the Nativity. When Mass ended Latin patriarch Alberto Gori carried a statue of the infant Jesus and led a procession down a winding stone staircase to the rock-hewn grotto which once was the stable in which Christ was born.

After the patriarchal procession left hundreds of Christians filed through the grotto and quietly prayed beside the manger.

Early on Christmas morning a bearded Greek Orthodox sexton carrying a silver incense burner walked through and perfumed the grotto.—AP.

Police Chief's Wife Fined

London, Dec. 24. Mrs. Zohla Dimiel, wife of the Istanbul Police Commissioner, was fined £5 on Thursday on a charge of shoplifting.

A store detective testified that Mrs. Dimiel, 45, tried to walk away with a shopping bag full of socks, nail varnish, perfume, scarves and lingerie.

Her lawyer said he was advised by the Turkish Embassy that Mrs. Dimiel—who pleaded innocence—came to London in September for medical treatment and was subject to periodic mental blackouts.

"I sometimes lose myself," Mrs. Dimiel told the judge. "My mind gets confused."—AP.

SLIPPERY PROBLEM

Venice, Dec. 25. Things got confused on the mainland highway near here yesterday when 5,000 live eels fell off a fish truck and started scurrying for freedom.

Traffic came to a standstill as the driver and passengers tried to round up the eels.

More than half of the slippery cargo escaped to a nearby canal.—UPI.

Communist Bombardment

Taipei, Dec. 24. Communist guns facing Quemoy fired 109 rounds on the Nationalist offshore island in sporadic bombardments yesterday, the Defense Ministry said. The Red guns were silent today in line with the Reds' alternate-day cease-fire, the Ministry said.—UPI.

"It's Your Fault"

Lima, Dec. 24. Seven persons were killed and 11 others injured today in a bus-truck collision near the city of Chileno, capital of the Department of Lambayeque. The drivers blamed each other for the crash.—UPI.

Negro Admits Rape Charge

New York, Dec. 25. A 30-year-old negro taxi-driver was held in $55,000 bail today for the attempted rape and beating of Laura Haines, daughter of prominent novelist William Wister Haines. Police said the driver confessed to five similar attacks during the last six months.

Robert Pearson, a husky, six-footer, admitted the Monday night attack on the 20-year-old Miss Haines after she identified him as her assailant on Wednesday, police said.

Pearson is married and has a five-year-old daughter.

He confessed to the other attacks under questioning, police said. Identities of the other women were not known.—UPI.

More Chinese Reported On Indian Border

New York, Dec. 25. The New York Times said today in a dispatch from Kalimpong, India that heavy concentrations of Chinese troops were reported along much of India's 2,500-mile frontier.

Tan D'Swisten said the Chinese were reliably reported to have established strongly fortified positions well equipped to withstand the sub-zero temperatures and blizzards of the Himalayan winters at altitudes up to 17,000 feet.

Heavily armed units said to have moved in recent months into the Chumbi Valley were considered a particular threat, the report said.—Reuter.

Arrested For Threatening Actor's Wife

Chicago, Dec. 24. Mrs. Violet Dembos, a 35-year-old divorcee, was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents on Wednesday on a charge of threatening movie star Victor Mature's wife, the former Adrianna Joy Urwick, daughter of a London physician.

The threat was contained in a letter mailed to Mature from Chicago on December 17. Mrs. Dembos, an unemployed factory worker and the mother of a 10-year-old child, had purchased an airline ticket to California and allegedly intended to carry out the threat.

Mrs. Dembos claimed she was a former wife of Mature. Mrs. Dembos, in the letter to Mature at his home in California, threatened to shoot Mrs. Mature or throw acid at her.—AP.

Xmas Dinner Behind Bars

Cairo, Dec. 24. Mr. Charles Palmer, British Consul General here, today visited James Zarb in Turah Prison and brought him Christmas presents from his wife in London.

Zarb, 40-year-old Maltese businessman serving a 10-year-sentence for espionage, is spending his fourth Christmas in gaol. He is allowed special food provided by the British Consulate General.—Reuter.

Mine Disaster

Fukuoka, Dec. 23. Attempts to rescue 18 miners trapped in a coal mine were abandoned tonight as continuing fire and explosions made it certain the men were dead. Forty-one miners were trapped on Tuesday in a series of coal camp explosions. Nineteen were rescued and four bodies were recovered.—UPI.

Christmas Drink

London, Dec. 25. Labourer Thomas Behan, 38, was fined £12 on a drunk and disorderly charge after he explained to the court: "I was paying the rent and my landlord gave me half a bottle of whisky as a Christmas present."—UPI.

London Market Ends Week On Strong Note

London, Dec. 24. Business in London Stock Markets during today's short session was at a much higher level than usual on Christmas Eve and the pattern was the same as earlier in the week.

The industrial market ended Christmas week and the account on a strong note but glittered securities lost fresh ground on renewed selling.

Foreign bonds and rails were neglected but dollar stocks ended.

Banking and insurance shares established many sharp gains while hire purchase issues also advanced.

There was a fairly large turnover in the industrial market and prices forged ahead on a renewed demand, much of which was for the new account which officially opens on Monday next.

The leaders recorded some appreciable gains and Imperial Chemicals went over the £3 mark for the first time. Steel shares were buoyant and engineering shares advanced.

Oil shares improved with Shell Transport a good feature but rubbers and tens were subdued.

Gold shares improved in response to a selective demand but other sections of the mining market attracted very little attention.

New York Closes Strong

New York, Dec. 24. The stock market closed on a note of strength today in a session marked by light pre-holiday trading.

Buyers switched from the recently favoured electronics to the blue chips. Steels reacted to the stalemate steel talks with losses ranging to more than 10 points in some of the leaders.

Motors, metals and oils held steady for the most part. Minnesota Mining dropped around two. Ampex was off more than 11 at its low. General Time featured a widely moving electronics section.

Dow-Jones closing averages were:

Arms Plot Uncovered

Washington, Dec. 23. FBI agents tonight broke up a plot to sell $180,000 worth of military submachine guns to the Castro government in Cuba by arresting two American armmen absent without leave, and a woman in North Carolina, the Justice Department announced.

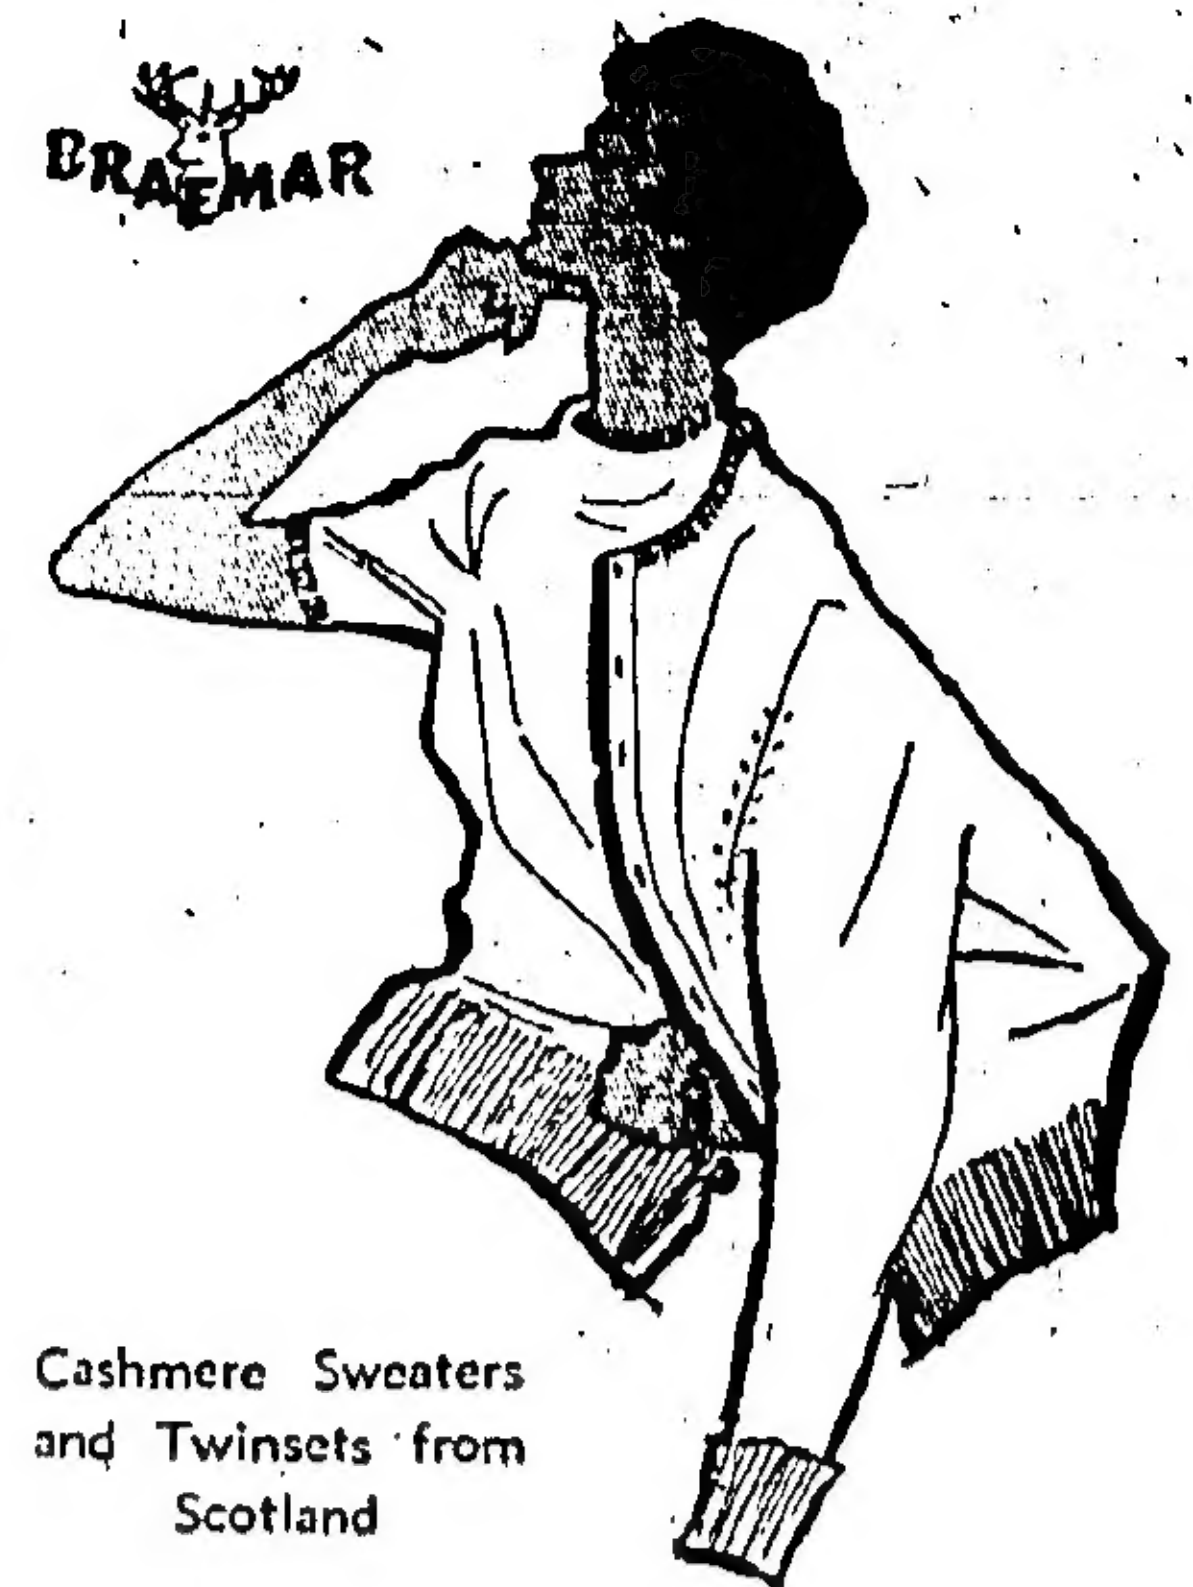

The arrests followed a three-day investigation. The FBI identified the persons arrested as Jack Barclay Franden, 35, an AWOL Air Force enlisted man, Luther Douglas Gills, 34, also AWOL from the Air Force and Mrs. Vivian Lake Fisher, 46, of New Orleans.—UPI.

U.S. Releases Part Of Impounded Cars

San Francisco, Dec. 25. One-third of 600 French cars impounded here on December 1 by the Government were released yesterday.

The French-made cars were impounded on suspicion of being a part of a Chinese financial transaction.

The withdrawal of 200 of the cars was allowed on payment of duty. The remaining 400 were assigned duty-free to a bonded warehouse.—UPI.

STORIES FOR BOYS & GIRLS

Cheering Up Chris

A Rose Makes Christopher Sing A Happy Song—

By MAX TRELL

"SOMETIMES," said Mr Punch, "I don't sleep much at night. Sometimes I stay awake from the time the sun sets in the evening until it rises again the next morning. I just sit in my chair right near the window and watch... and watch... and watch..."

What He Watches

Knarl and Hamid, the Shadow Children with the Turned-About Names, who were standing by Mr Punch's chair, asked him what he watched when he couldn't sleep during the night. "Different things," said Mr Punch. "Sometimes I watch the stars sail across the sky. Sometimes I watch the moon climb over the hill. Last night I watched Christopher Cricket."

Knarl and Hamid looked at Mr Punch with surprised smiles. "I'll tell you all about it," said Mr Punch. "Just sit down and listen."

Begins Story

Then Mr Punch began as follows: "The clock had already struck 12 o'clock. I was sitting here as I am now with my eyes wide open. I was hidden in the shadow. All at once I saw Christopher Cricket come out from behind his two loose bricks in the fireplace where he is snugly spending the winter. I watched Christopher. Mr Punch went on, 'as he hopped over to the window quite close to me, but he didn't see me at first."

Would you sing if you saw a flower?

Happiest Song

"If I saw a flower," Christopher said, "I'd sing the happiest song I know. But you're just saying this to cheer me up. There aren't any flowers to be seen—not a single one."

"Do you see the bookshelf from where you are, Christopher?" I asked.

"Yes," said Christopher, "I see the bookshelf."

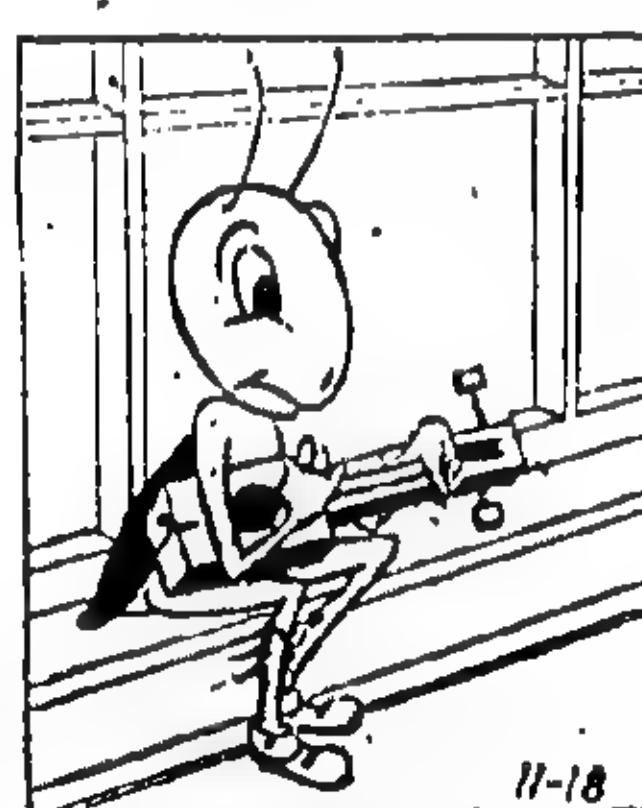

"Do you see the tall glass vase standing on it?" I went on.

"Do you see what's standing in the vase? Hop on the bookshelf and look closely at what's standing in the vase."

"Christopher hopped on the bookshelf and gazed up at the top of the vase."

It Was A Rose

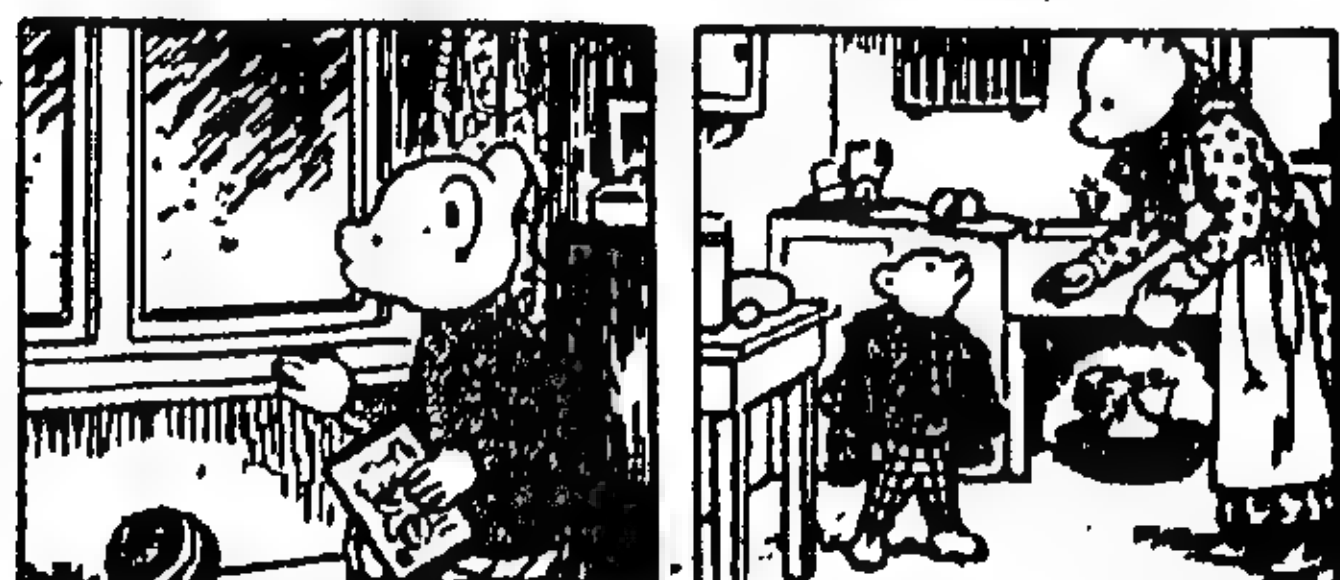

"It's a rose! A real rose! A red rose! Mr Punch, my friend," Christopher said, "it's winter outside, but Spring is in this room!"

Christopher put his guitar across his knee.

"And Christopher sat himself down at once on the bookshelf and gazed up at the rose and played and sang the happiest song he knew. 'And that,' said Mr Punch to his friends Knarl and Hamid, 'is what I saw last night while I wasn't sleeping.'"

Rupert and the Snowball—1

It has been a hard winter. Snow and yet more snow has been falling, and Rupert has been kept indoors until he is tired of playing with his toys, and he knows all his books by heart. One morning the sky seems to be less dark overhead, and he runs to his Mummy, "The weather's clearing," he declares. "May I go for a run in the snow?" "Very well, perhaps it will do you good," Mrs. Bear smiles. "Mind you move about and keep warm." And she puts a couple of buns in a paper bag for him to take.

LADY LUCK—your CHINA MAIL horoscope

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 26

AQUARIUS (January 21-February 19): Your love of independence makes it easy for you to understand the desire of others to enjoy personal freedom.

PISCES (February 20-March 20): By explaining your shortcomings you call attention to them; let people judge you by your good qualities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Finding yourself in a tight place, don't give up hope. The tide is already turning.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You are perhaps inclined to judge too much by appearances. People with secret sorrows may appear cold when they are really only sad.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): You will find the greatest satisfaction in being generous to people who have no means of repaying you.

CANCER (June 22-July 21): Don't begrudge others their riches. Your life is full of good things which cannot be bought.

LEO (July 22-August 21): Try to avoid finding fault. It is easy to improve matters with a few words of encouragement.

VIRGO (August 22-September 22): You ought to have a higher opinion of yourself. Your good qualities considerably outweigh your shortcomings.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22): Resolve to do each day's task well and you cannot fail to come out on top in the end.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): Given a difficult job to do, learn to like it and it will be so much easier to accomplish. SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): When making resolutions for the coming year, be sure to decide only on those which you feel you can keep. CAPRICORN (December 22-January 20): Don't do things for others merely out of a sense of duty. It will not give them any more pleasure than it does you. LUCKY ENCOUNTER: If today is your birthday, a meeting with a man named GORDON may have some special significance.

WONG Sai-ma is an average Chinese farmer. We see him almost every day toiling in his tiny plot of land to eke out an existence.

What kind of a life does this man lead?
To answer this question, a Chinese-speaking photographer and I lived with Wong for one day.
This is a story of a day in the life of a farmer in the New Territories.

THE Chinese farmer yawned wearily and peered into the grey dawn. He threw off his bed covers, slowly pulled himself to his feet and trudged into the chilly early morning.

It was 6 a.m. and another day had started for 38-year-old Wong Sai-ma. He looked at the sky and decided that the day was going to be good. He then returned to his small hut and woke his wife.

Ever since he can remember, he has had enough food for his wife and children, and now he has even secured a part-time coolie job to build up his income to a little over $100 a month.

During this time his wife and half-awake children had been eying us suspiciously. She murmured a guarded question across to her husband.

Amused

Amusement rippled across his lined face as he saw me wince at the sight of half a dried-up fish.

With a toothy smile, flashing with the odd speck of gold, Wong shrugged and told the photographer that times were good.

He said in rapid Cantonese that for the last few months he

AWAY FROM THE SIN CITIES IT'S UNDERFERD, UNDERPAID, OVERWORKED

The other side
sunny Florida

WILL all those British people who accepted food parcels, tins of pork, ham, and chicken, chocolate, and several hundred thousand pairs of nylon stockings during the austerity era please return their worth either in money or kind to the South?

Not the rich South of Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Palm Beach, but the poor South right here in Central Florida.

There are two Floridas—probably more. One is the gold coast, the cities of splendid sun, dazzling with pleasure palaces for the dollar-heavy tourists. The other, which I have been seeing since I left Sebring, after seeing the recent race, is over-worked, underpaid, ill-fed, and ill-housed.

I drove along the dead straight secondary road across Central Florida, skirting the expanding swamp land and Lake Okeechobee. The country is forlorn, few restaurants, cinemas, no hard-liquor bars, only garish package stores and occasional beer parlours. The Baptists grip these counties and have indicted a form of Prohibition on it.

Actually (the package store where you buy whiskey, gin, rum, and wine creates excessive and fastidious drinking in hotel and motel bedrooms. This is not gracious living or civilised behaviour, but it is better than nothing.

A member of the British motor-racing contingent who was here told me: "I didn't think Florida was like this. Where are the honky-tonks? I thought we'd have ourselves a ball." (He affects Americanisms.)

Shoddy

WE were driving past shack communities and the poverty was palpable. The only thing that impressed the motoring expert was the discipline and skill of the car drivers.

He said: "If the American driver can be disciplined like this, then so can the British driver, although it's going to take time. I haven't seen anyone going more than a few miles over the 60-m.p.h. limit and one overtaking at corners or cutting in.

OUR HALF-ACRE FARMER

China Mail Reporter

pain picked up two water carriers and hurried outside. His 12-month-old son, Tak-ku, apparently the privileged member of the household, snuggled a little closer under the thin sleeping cover as we settled our attention on him.

Wong grinned proudly as we started to discuss his son. He crossed the room, picked him up and displayed his son's healthy physique.

He said through the photographer that in two years' time Tak-ku would be able to help in the fields.

Light work

"Light work," he conceded, "but it will be good for him to get the feel of the land at an early age."

Tak-ku, naturally, will be a farmer as his forefathers in the Chu Chow district have been for many generations.

Wong still clutching his son proudly led us to the low doorway of the shanty.

I asked him whether he was happy and he grinned broadly. He pointed at his son, pointed to his wife and daughter watering the vegetables and knocked on the side of his "home."

He didn't say anything but it was obvious that he had all he wanted. He grinned again.... life was good.

How much land did he own? "Half an acre," came the quick reply. What was his goal and ambition in life?

"Someday, maybe, I will have one acre."

Rope

He carefully returned his son to bed and told the photographer that he would have to help his wife.

After that, the family had to combine to twine some rope.

He went out to his half acre and worked side by side with his wife and daughter. For Wong life was good.

At 9 a.m. operation breakfast was under way and the hut hummed with activity.

Within a short time congee was served. We were his guests and naturally, we would have to join him. Being so far an uninitiated westerner, congee and I didn't hit it off too well. But for Wong and his family? The way they wolfed it down it could have been caviar.

Breakfast over, a full stomach and back to the land.

I gathered that Wong was very pleased to think that he had had enough food to entertain guests for a day.

For the next four and a half hours until lunch at 2 p.m.

Wong worked hard — by European standards he was working at slave pace.

But for all he cared he could have been on the Riviera. He planted for an hour or so, then he hoed the ground and for a time he ploughed a section of the stamp-sized farm. He offered me the plough — a heavy caveman-like instrument.

I kept it up for about two minutes... that was enough. He laughed, took back the plough and happily worked with it for the next hour as if it was made of balsa wood.

Source

Two o'clock in the afternoon and it was lunch — a bowl of rice and about two square inches of last night's fish.

He then rolled a cigarette and watched his wife wash his son, which appeared to be a never-ending source of amusement for Wong.

Apart from the environment the scene could have been anywhere in the world.

Mother washing baby, daughter helping mother, baby crying and father sitting back smoking, very amused at the whole scene.

Another cigarette and back to the half acre. It was now more than eight hours since Wong started his day. He returned to work with a freshness and vigour as if he had just got up.

His afternoon's programme consisted of planting, weeding and digging a new garbag tip. Before dinner at 6 p.m. he and his wife watered the crops again.

Most of the afternoon was spent in almost complete silence. An odd comment there and there and back to work again. At 6 p.m. the family gathered for the meal and rice and pork was served.

Wong having lunch with his family. "Times are good," he says.

He repeated the smoke routine after his meal, and then sat down to twine some rope. By this time his wife had lost some of her shyness and asked us a few questions.

How many bowls of rice do we eat? Have we got a car of our own? How big a house do we live in?

Content

Wong listened to the questions and answers with indifference, possibly a little amused to hear his wife asking questions — obviously he was not used to hearing them....

The children were in bed and Wong sat contentedly twining his rope, summoning the occasional aid from his wife.

It was getting near bed time.

"Must sleep to be strong," Wong commented.

"We can learn a lot from the American driver if not from the American racing driver or motor manufacturer. I intend to tell them so when I get back home. Funny that this State, which is very poor in parts, can support these good minor roads and the super highways and parkways."

Poor whites

I TOLD him the answer was heavy tolls amounting to as much as £1 for 200 for 300 miles, and he said he doubted whether the British would stand for tolls. But about the poor South, and specifically poor Florida, as distinct from fabulous Florida, which everyone, including myself, has written about so much, 12-hour working days are not uncommon. One dollar an hour, no sick pay, no holidays, and no notice of dismissal, few unions.

I'm not talking about the negro — I'm talking about the poor white, the Florida cracker, the red necks who are often so impoverished that their resentment swells against the coloured in violence and the strictest form of segregation.

I talked to a waitress in Indianola and asked: "How's the segregation problem here?" She said: "We don't have no segregation here. We just keep the negroes on the other side of town. They have their life and we have ours."

"A lot of them do better than we do. We want no mixing here." And there's no mixing, or very little.

The poor whites resent the interest and the outcry abroad about segregation, and say so plainly. They also resent the amount of money poured into Europe by the United States. Now that much of Europe, and especially Britain, blooms with prosperity they would like some of the money or goods back.

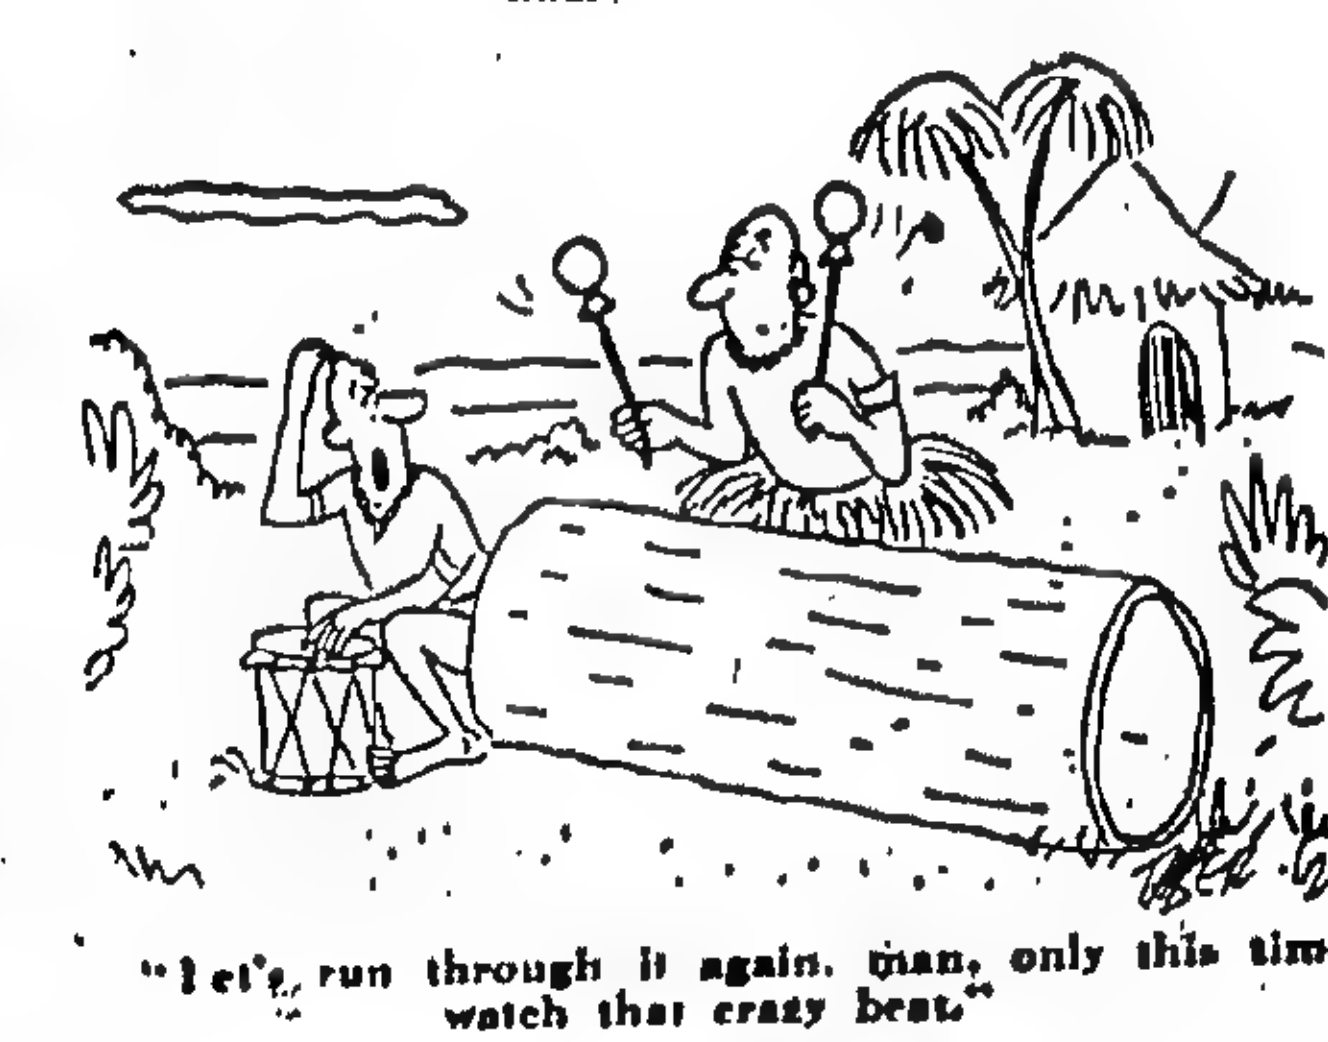

In the restaurant, incongruous in the bright sunlight, was a Christmas tree with the greeting: "Merry Christmas. Come again, soon." Nearby was another sign "No swearing. No vulgar language. We reserve the right to refuse service."

There was a big jukebox and a picture of Christ over it. The food was atrocious. I tried to eat unimpeachable steak and sweet potatoes and my friend tried southern fried chicken. The manager came over and the English car expert said unkindly: "You know, I'm beginning to think American food is among the world's worst. It's not a patch on British."

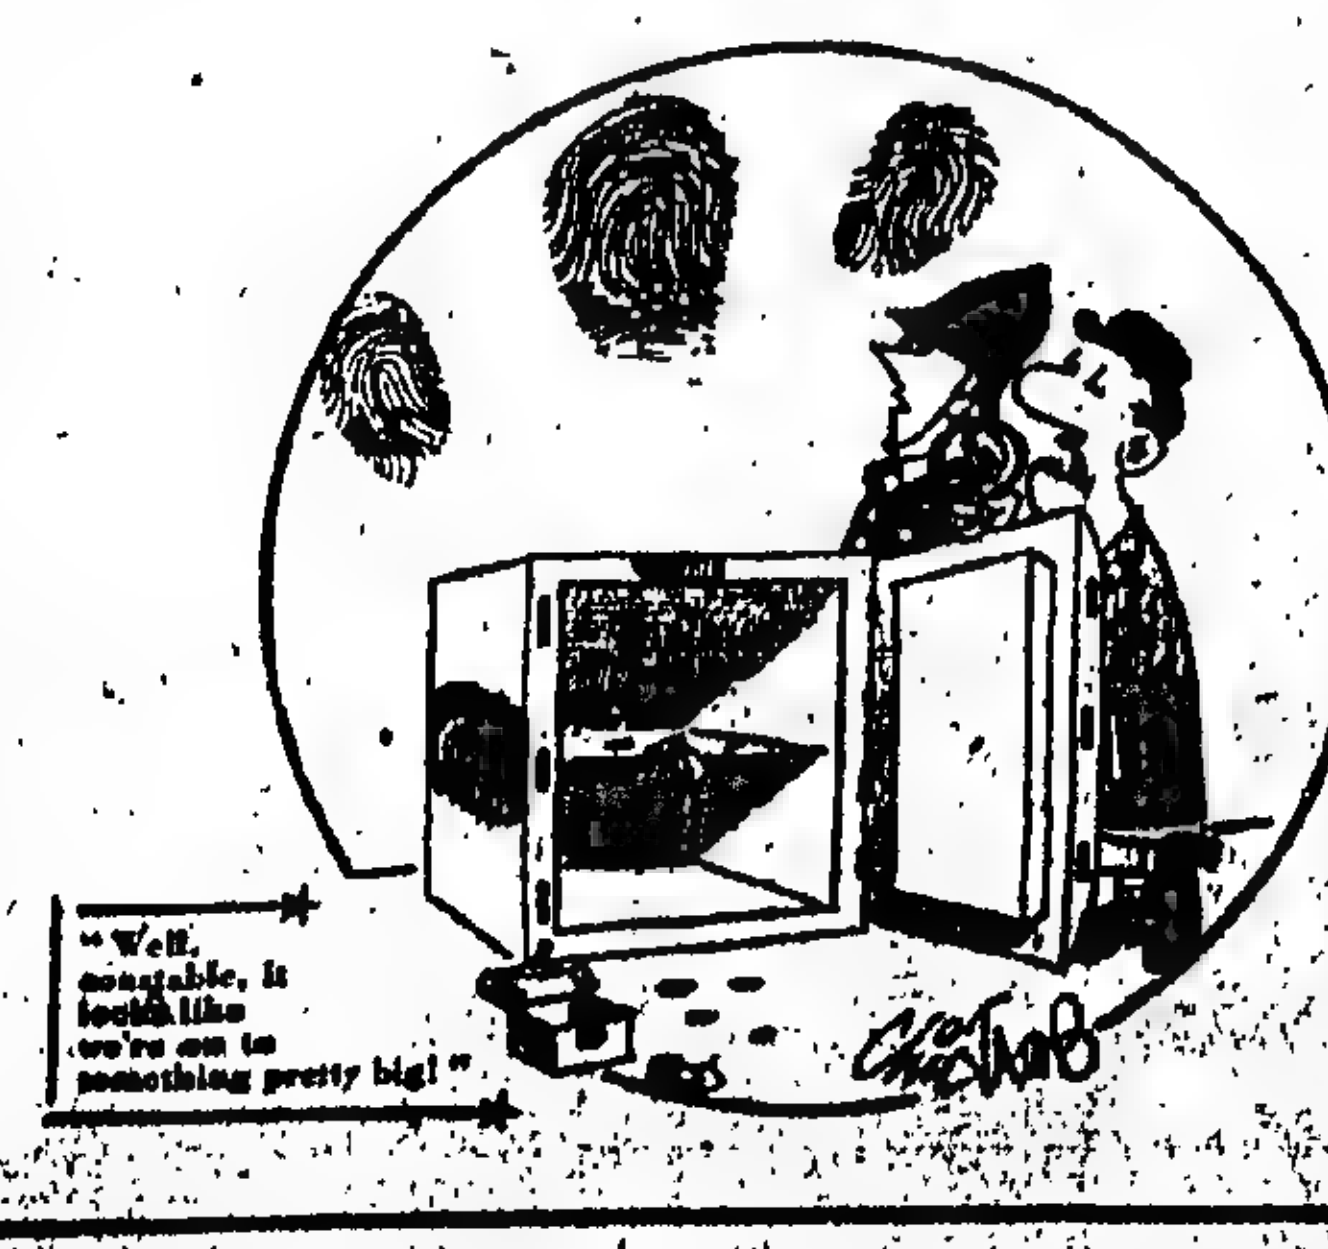

The manager, who told me he was an ex-alcoholic, turned out to be a philosopher. "Something's gone wrong in America in the last year or so. We aren't first no more. There's the Russian rocket—you saw we lost another Titan at the Cape the other day. We've lost the heavyweight championship to a Swede, and look at the Centaur Roney Plans still flourishing at Inyo look at Sebring, which you gentlemen say you saw. The young people won't work. PETER presents the social structure of show business

THIS week I've been studying society in show business and here is a close-up look at the curious coteries in which the stars collect after hours.

TOP SOCIETY is the Olivier set.

It is an exclusive company of stars, difficult for newcomers to break into. It includes Rattigan, Rex Harrison, and John Mills.

Most welcome visitors from out of town: Noel Coward and Lauren Bacall.

Next, the HELLRAISERS. Head Hellraiser: Trevor Howard, the roaring, happy extrovert. There's Peter Finch, Brendan Behan, and newcomer Peter O'Toole, talented young actor with a big zest for the night life.

The lady in the group is Adrienne Corri, naturally.

Then THE THINKERS. Hellraiser Finch is also known as one of the most serious-minded actors. He paints and marches in band-parades.

Arch-fool Spike Milligan, the nightmare figure in a nightshirt, really prefers to discuss world affairs, politics.

Top film-maker Carl Foreman, who put a new, deep focus on screenwriting in Britain, is interested in literature and politics.

PREMIERE CELEBRITIES, the starlets seen at every premiere, but rarely in a film. The camera-hunters in plunging necklines: Yvonne Buckingham, June Cunningham, Vanda Hudson, Joy Webster.

Few graduate from the group. Exception: Shirley Ann Field. THE QUIET ONES rarely mix with other actors.

Max Miller, one of the richest men in show business (outside the Olivier set). He owns a Rolls-Royce (with glass roof), and a six-berth cabin cruiser.

Virginia McKenna lives an almost reclusive life with actor-husband Bill Travers and son in Surrey village. Then there's Max Bygraves, another home lover.

The smuggling route which Foncha says Nasser uses

From DONALD WISE

PINT-SIZED Premier John Foncha, of the southern section of the British-administered Cameroons in Africa, told me recently that he believes that President Nasser of the United Arab Republic has been supplying arms to the elusive "invisible killers" who operate from Foncha's territory across the River Wuri into the French Cameroons.

Thus another complication is added to the tangled story of the Cameroons—British and French—which were won from the Germans in the 1914-18 war and are due to achieve independence.

Foncha says the supplies came from Nasser's arsenal of arms which he obtained from the Russian satellite countries.

They were sent, he says, from Upper Egypt into the Western Sudan, through the republic of Chad, and via the Fort Lamy district into the dense jungle of the French Cameroons.

From there they joined the normal west-east, overland smugglers' route, bringing in 7.66-millimetre Czech automatics and machine guns.

Other Communist weapons, he thinks, are probably slipped into the Cameroons coastal swamps in canoe-loads from ocean-going vessels standing offshore.

Foncha, who stands for federation with the troubled French Cameroons, is desperately anxious about the trouble in the French area.

This human dynamo has good reason. There are three possibilities—
FIRST he believes Premier Abacha, his opposite number in the French territory, will be able to break the "invisible men" immediately he is free to play his own hand.

BUT the fighting is likely to intensify and spill over into British territory where the density of police is one man per 110 square miles—a total force of 457 officers and men.

BECAUSE of this, the Southern Cameroons may split asunder, some for federation with the former French territory and some for federation with Nigeria.

Vote opposed

The present position is that under orders from UNO the British Southern Cameroons are disengaging from Nigeria, which becomes independent next October.

Then, in March 1961, there will be a plebiscite to decide whether the people want to federate with independent Nigeria or the independent Cameroons.

Schoolmaster John Foncha recently wired UNO that he does not want a plebiscite. Foncha built himself from a one-man opposition into Premier

Invisible men 'get Red guns'

A PREMIER ACCUSES NASSER OF AIDING THE ELUSIVE REBELS

In February by campaigning (with two broken collar bones) on a bicycle when he could not afford new tyres for his car.

He told me of the terror campaign in French territory by the Union des Populations du Cameroons, master-minded by Felix Moumy from Guinea and urged on by Cairo radio.

"Their politics are cruel and devilish," he said. "They leave no room for opposition."

Red State

Indeed, Moumy's aides, the top six of whom are Reds, have openly stated that they wish the United Cameroons to become the first African Soviet State.

There are no newspapers in Foncha's Cameroons, and his radio does not mention either the "invisible men" or the U.P.C. "Thank goodness we cannot often hear Cairo radio," he said.

Foncha plugs the idea of federation with French territory because he fears domination by Eastern Nigeria if he joined up with the territory on his western border.

The French Cameroons is larger and more highly developed. The British-held Northern Cameroons (which have nothing to do with Foncha) recently elected to stay outside the Nigerian federation under British administration.

Poor and backward as it is, the banana-palm-oil-timber-and-cocoa-producing British Cameroons has now a fateful choice.
Will the combined Cameroons become the place of the future in Africa as the economic planners prophesy? Or are the

BIRTH CONTROL: NOW THE HOTTEST THING IN U.S. POLITICS

A BUS speeding along a mid-Western highway in America was pulled to a sudden and unexpected stop one day, recently, and a group of men jumping aboard immediately surrounded one of the passengers.

The surprised passenger was Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, who is a possible contender for the Democratic Party's Presidential nomination.

"What's the matter, boys? Are we at war or something?" queried the incredulous Humphrey who recognised his interrogators as reporters.

He couldn't have looked more startled when informed they wished to question him about the birth control issue.

The determination of reporters to find Humphrey wherever he was and to obtain his views is merely one illustration of just how explosive the birth control debate has become since it first started with the now-famous statement of the Roman Catholic bishops.

After a long meeting in Washington 200 American cardinals, archbishops, and bishops attacked any use of public funds to promote birth control at home or abroad, including underdeveloped countries.

This statement was at once attacked by a Protestant bishop as "condemning rapidly increasing millions in less fortunate parts of the world to starvation, bondage, misery and despair."

Now, only weeks after the original declaration, it seems that the American bishops may have fatally damaged the Presidential dreams of young Jack Kennedy—Roman Catholic senator from Massachusetts. For Kennedy, cornered by reporters, gave a partial endorsement of the Roman Catholic bishops' view, saying it would be a "mistake" for the American Government to advocate birth control abroad. It looks as if support for Kennedy is already weakening.

Even Dixon has suffered a slight decline in popularity as a result indirectly of his refusal to take any sides in the great debate.

Unity

Despite President Eisenhower's attempts before he left the country to remove the issue from the national political arena, it will remain a flaming and emotional subject right up until election time in November, 1960.

It is not just in the political forums that the question is being debated. It has also become the major topic in millions of homes throughout the nation.

I spoke to a university professor, a psychiatrist, an artist, a former Russian prince turned American, a taxicab driver and many others. They represented several different faiths—except the Catholics—but all appeared to share the conviction that population planning would have to become a responsibility of the Government of the future.

The professor summed up their feelings when he said: "In every discussion I have ever had on this matter, Americans show surprising unity in their concern over a powerful and organised Catholic vote."

One of the great surprises of the controversy has been the strange silence on the part of Vice-President Nixon.

American newspapermen were clamouring at his door in the Capitol almost every day of the week seeking some sort of statement on what he, as President, might do about using foreign aid funds for birth control.

I called Nixon's office in search of an explanation and the following conversation ensued with his Press secretary, G. Keith.

Question: "Doesn't Mr. Nixon intend to make any statement at all on this matter?"

Answer: Mr. Eisenhower has expressed the views of the Administration.

Question: "Doesn't it seem strange that the only name missing from the list of Presidential aspirants who made statements is that of Mr. Nixon?"

Answer: Well, I think this position holds for the present.

Question: "Wouldn't it be wise for Nixon to at least make a statement paralleling Mr. Eisenhower's position?"

Answer: He doesn't want to make any comments at this time.

'Concession'

Far more outspoken were Protestant leaders and specialists in family planning.

The strongest editorial comment on Kennedy's position was carried by the New York Post: "We believe that what Kennedy stands for is dead wrong."

The Post stated: "We would raise serious doubt about a man whose political theology branded aid to the indigent as a form of mortal political sin."

"We can hardly voice lesser doubt about a man who for any reason rejects the use of birth control as an elementary weapon in the battle against poverty and squalor in the year 1959."

History may well record that up to November 25, 1959, the toothy-haired boyish Kennedy held the promise of becoming the first Roman Catholic President in the history of the United States.

Certainly the public opinion polls supported this view.

Up until recently Kennedy was running a comfortable 10 per cent ahead of Vice-President Nixon in public opinion studies of leading Presidential candidates.

That was before the leaders of his faith had spoken.

The Little Ball Can Become A Really Big Bawl!!

I. M. MacTAVISH

By the time you read this column you will probably be aware of the outcome of the 'case of the little ball and the little pitch'.... in other words you will almost certainly know the decision of the Appeals Board of the Hongkong Football Association in respect of the appeal which had been made to it to rescind the ban on registered soccer players participating in games organised by the Hongkong Miniature Football Association.

I am not going to try and anticipate the findings of the distinguished triumvirate who will hear the appeal but here are one or two points worthy of deep thought.

If the appeal has been refused it seems inevitable that there will be ominous rumblings from interested players and officials and these could have important repercussions.

If the appeal has been sustained, however, let me say only that you can look out for far reaching reactions which will sweep the matter beyond the borders of Hongkong... and I don't mean just in the direction of FIFA's headquarters!

At this stage it would be better to say no more... but as you may already know the decision of the Appeals Board, you may also have had evidence of some of the consequences no matter which way the board decided.

Today is Boxing Day and for no reason other than the obvious association of ideas stimulated by the title, you may well ask... "What is happening about boxing in Hongkong at the moment?"

As they say... that is a good question.

If boxing is to regain its former place in the community or better still if it is to achieve its proper place in our sporting affairs, then the public must see it and they must read about it.

The active season is now half over and, apart from the Centenary Show organised by the Army Physical Training Corps, there has not been one promotion which the general public could have attended.

More Boxing

The Services have of course been active within their own confines and I have no doubt some of the keenest members of the Boxing Section of the Hongkong Police Sports Association have been keeping themselves in trim but these circumstances are of little encouragement to the ordinary man in the street whose only interest is to see boxers in competitive contests.

The Hongkong Amateur Boxing Association planned a tournament for novices during December but apparently due to lack of entries it did not take place.

I am well aware of the keenness which exists among the officials of the HKABA and I am sure they are doing all they can to get the old art of footstuffs back in the limelight but somehow they must get boxers into the ring in public very soon or interest will have dwindled to a dangerously low level.

Two shows are scheduled for the second half of the season. There will be the Annual 'Earl Ingle' tournament and the Colony Championships... but frankly, even allowing for all the prevailing circumstances, two public shows a season is not enough.

Strange things have been attributed to the ancient playing fields of Elton and unless something is done to recondition one or two of the Colony's major football pitches equally strange things, but of a somewhat different nature, will be attributed to the playing fields of Hongkong.

A couple of weeks ago I watched Eastern beat Tung Wah at Caroline Hill and I was both shocked and surprised at the poor state of the ground. The turf was hard and far from ideal for men who wanted to display their ball control.

JACK SOLOMONS' LUCK

By ARCHIE QUICK

This is not a fairy story. Nothing about the leprechauns so beloved by the Irish who believe in the Little People. It is a tale of a hard-headed businessman, his legendary luck, and professional boxing.

Yet one fact that runs through post-war British fist-cuffs like the theme music through a film is that whenever Jack Solomons promotes an open-air tournament, that evening will surely be fine. Whatever the weather prophets have had to say, Jupiter Pluvius has never let down Jolly Jack.

But on September 4, 1946 we really thought the gods were going to forsake him. At great expense, Solomons had brought over world lightweight champion Ike Williams to tussle with the British titleholder, Swansea's Ronnie James, for the global crown at Cardiff, virtually Ronnie's own back garden.

It Rained

The arena was the very centre of Cardiff City's football ground at Ninian Park, and it rained heavily all day. With two Press colleagues, I motored from London the long way via Gloucester and we got bogged down in the Cotswolds, first with a puncture and then floods. Never a fight tonight, we said. We had forgotten the fairy godmother who always waved her wand for Solomons. When we got to Cardiff and reached Jack's hotel there was a large bucket on the veranda outside his window, three-quarters full of rain water. "If that overflows," he said, "I shall call the fight off." As the water reached the very brim the rain stopped, the sun came out, the fight took place in a squelchy Ninian Park, and, so help me, as soon as it was over the heavens opened again!

'Bolo' Punch

Ike Williams, from the Deep South of the United States, one of the best champions, kept his title that night by knocking out Ronnie in the ninth round, but for the first time he introduced the British public to the "Bolo" punch. This is a looping uppercut that starts way back behind the knees, includes a couple of flourishes and is alternated with an over-arm blow. Poor Ronnie James could make nothing of Williams' right hand deliveries, but it was a left hook to the jaw which finished him off.

Sad Night

It was a sad night for the Swansea boy, and worse was to follow. He went to Australia to fight Vic Patrick for the vacant Empire title, and failed to make the weight. A trip across the world for nothing. When he came back, James was not able to scale 9st 5lbs and faded from the scene after losing to Cliff Curvis in a Swansea "local Derby." On the other hand, Williams, now domiciled in Trekon, New Jersey, where Rocky Marciano came from—went on to prove himself a good world champion with a series of victories over top class opponents.

36-Acre Sports Centre For Crystal Palace

A sports hall, stadium and tower block are all part of the new national youth and sports centre to be created on the old exhibition site at Crystal Palace, London, at a cost of over two million pounds to provide a central home for a wide range of amateur sport.

There will be training courses for coaches and sports leaders as well as facilities for displays, matches, film and television shows. The hall will have three swimming pools on one side and a gymnasium on the other, to cater for squash, tennis and cricket practice, and surrounding it will be open-air games pitches and practice areas.

Inside the stadium there will be a football pitch and seven-lane running track, whilst the eleven-storey tower block will have sufficient hotel accommodation for 138 resident students. Linked to this will be a smaller block with dining hall and clubroom.

Altogether the new centre will occupy 36 acres and ample provision is being made for spectators.—Bureau Service.

The Man Johansson Has Most To Fear

By DEREK JOHN

The best left-jabber since Joe Louis... the toughest fighter since Marciano... the hardest hitter in years... the next heavy-weight champion of the world.

That's what Americans are saying about 15st 6lb 2in Sonny Liston of Philadelphia. Having just seen a television film of Liston in action I'm convinced that here is the man Ingemar Johansson has most to fear.

Liston—nicknamed Great Stone Face—has won 23 of 27 fights and hasn't been beaten in five years. His knock-out victims include Cleveland Williams, Nino Valdes and Mike DeJohn.

For the trouble with 27-year-old Liston is that he's too obviously dangerous. All the top rankers are giving him a wide berth. Meanwhile, the return bout between Johansson and Patterson awaits the unravelling of a complex legal tangle: Jack Solomons is negotiating for the world champion to meet Henry Cooper; and there are rumours of a Rocky Marciano comeback.

Sonny Liston is left out in the cold. I reckon he will be lucky to get a crack at a world champion's chin before he reaches retirement.—London Express Service.

Too Dangerous

Liston, a reform school graduate like Floyd Patterson, is currently ranked No. 4 in the world—after Johansson, Patterson and Zora Folley. And he's likely to stay No. 4 for a long, long time.

Solomons' Best Match

By DEREK JOHN

The most unusual Christmas card I've received this year shows two people standing inside a wedding ring—a man wearing boxing gloves and a dressing gown; a woman perched on three boxes of cigars.

The caption reads: "The best match I ever made. Forty-first round coming up. Each counts 30 days and near a blow struck in anger. May you be as happy this Christmas as we've been for forty years."

The sender is Jack Solomons who celebrates his 40th wedding anniversary this week. Next year Mr and Mrs Solomons both celebrate their 60th birthday.—London Express Service.

Run For It Your Majesty

By CHARLES STEPHEN

Which sport commands the most fanatical followers? Bowls set the pace when Sir Francis Drake insisted on finishing his game before going to deal with the Spanish Armada.

Golf had its chance to catch up when in 1683 Charles I was playing on the links at Leith when he received news of the Irish rebellion.

Did he say: "Hard me my putter, there is time enough to beat the Irish?" He did not. Eye-witness account has it that he "discontinued the game and fled."

The story is told in "The Encyclopedia of Golf" by Nevil Gifford (Nicholas Kaye, 45s), a book that answers just about all the golfing questions you can think of, and hundreds you would never think of.

India Beats Australia

FIRST EVER TEST CRICKET VICTORY; SCORE NOW 1-1

Kanpur, Dec. 25.

Amid scenes of wild enthusiasm Jasu Patel and Polly Umrigar spun out Australia here yesterday for India to gain their first victory over the Australians since the two countries began test cricket meetings in 1947.

Australia's remaining eight wickets fell in 73 minutes for the addition of 46 runs and they were all out for 103, their lowest total against India. India won by 119 runs to level the five-match series at one-match all.

Final scores: India 152 and 201; Australia 219 and 103. Chief architect of victory was Patel, 35-year-old Ahmedabad off-spinner, who took five second innings wickets for 55 to finish with match figures of 14 for 124, the best Indian bowling performance in test cricket. Umrigar took four second innings wickets for 27.

EXCITED CROWD

The excited crowd of 15,000 called for their players to parade round the ground. When Gularbhai Ramchand and his colleagues appeared, they received a tremendous reception, and garlands were showered on them. One over-enthusiastic supporter threw something which struck Raghunath Narkarni in the head. The all-rounder had to be assisted to the dressing room for attention.

Riekh Benaud, the Australian captain, congratulated Ramchand and presented him with his cap. Said the Indian captain: "This is the happiest day of my life." Ramchand has already been appointed to lead India again in the third test, starting in Bombay on January 1, and he seems certain to do so in the fourth and fifth tests. India's win was their first success in 15 tests in four series—against Australia in 1959, the West Indies in 1958-59, England in 1959 and the present series.

LANDSLIDE

The Australian landslide began in the first over of the day, when Norman O'Neill nicked Umrigar to short leg to make three men out for 59. In Umrigar's next over, Ken Mackay fell bowled, and even the well-set opening bat, Colin McDonald, struggled against the spinners made an Indian victory a foregone conclusion. Patel, in his seventh over of the morning, dismissed both Alan Davidson and Benaud. Barry Jarman and Lindsay Kilne, like Mackay and Benaud, went for "ducks" but Ian Meckiff pulled two successive balls from Patel to the boundary and later hit Umrigar for four to send up the 100 in 170 minutes.

At 105, McDonald made his first mistake. He stepped out to Patel, missed and was stumped. He had resisted altogether for nearly three hours in making top score of 34.

With Gordon Rorke still not well enough to bat, the innings ended with McDonald's dismissal. Meckiff was undefeated for 14.

Scoreboard: India 1st innings 152 (A Davidson 2 for 31), 2nd 201 (R. Kenny 31; Davidson 7 for 83). Australia 1st innings 219 (J. Patel 5 for 124; Umrigar 4 for 27), 2nd 103 (G. Rorke 1 for 11; Umrigar 4 for 27). Extras (b-b, lb-w) 10. Total 401. Fall of Wickets: 1/12, 2/49, 3/59, 4/101, 5/78, 6/78, 7/70, 8/84, 9/103.

Plea For Goodwill In Commonwealth X'mas Broadcast

London, Dec. 25.

The voices of doctors, teachers, farmers, and sportsmen many thousands of miles apart joined in a plea for goodwill among all races in today's traditional Christmas day radio link-up of Commonwealth countries.

A break with tradition was that the link-up this year came after and not before the Queen's message. This had been broadcast in the morning in Britain. Instead of the afternoon to make it possible for other people in the Commonwealth to listen in at a reasonable hour.

Another change was that it was organised by the Australian Broadcasting Commission and not by the British Broadcasting Corporation as hitherto.

The speakers included Leatrice Constantine, the West Indian test cricketer, and Herb Elliott, the Australian holder of the world mile record, who praised Commonwealth co-operation. —Reuter.

Australia's First Loss

Albi, Dec. 25.

Australia's Rugby League team suffered the first defeat in five matches on its current French tour when Albi won 19 to 10 here today. The local club took a 11-nil half-time lead.

The 6,295 spectators watched Aime score a hat trick to pace Albi. Two other tries were marked by Laurent and Fabre, while Deffer scored a penalty goal and a drop kick.

Hambly and Barnes got all of Australia's points, Hambly making two tries and Barnes converting both of them.

The Aussies, who had won all four of their previous matches in France, including two test matches against the French national team, were tired from their game yesterday with Villeneuve-Sure-Lot in the mud. —AFP.

Explosion Injures 3

Warsaw, Ky., Dec. 25.

An explosion wrecked a beer distributor's warehouse today and severely damaged houses in a radius of five to seven blocks.

At least three persons were injured severely enough to require hospital treatment.

The manager of the plant, Jack Smith, about 35, was in the building at the time of the blast. He was taken to a hospital at Covington, Kentucky, in critical condition.

Two other persons were taken to a hospital at Carrollton, Kentucky, with less serious injuries. —UPI.

TITLE FIGHT

New York, Dec. 25.

A world heavy weight boxing championship rematch between titleholder Ingemar Johansson and Floyd Patterson will be held in New York City next June, according to a group seeking to promote the rematch.

William Farney, travel agency executive, said the rematch "is all set" when he left Idlewild airport on Friday night en route to a meeting with Johansson in Stockholm next Tuesday. No other details—such as the exact date and date—have been arranged, he said. —AP.

2 Arrested In Anti-Semitic Incident

Cologne, Dec. 25.

Two persons who painted swastikas on the walls of Cologne's new synagogue on Christmas eve were arrested here today.

Josef Hermann Dufhues, Minister of the Interior of Rhineland Westphalia, who announced the arrests, said that the two men were members of the extremist Neo-Nazi "German Party of the Reich". Dufhues added that an investigation was underway to discover whether any political forces were behind the vandalism. This inquiry, he said, will be carried out with "the utmost rigour" if only to guard the interests of German democracy's reputation in the eyes of the outside world.

This morning, Cologne Police discovered red and black swastikas on the walls of the synagogue which was inaugurated last September in the presence of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. The Nazi emblem was found painted on either side of the door while on the wall the vandals had written, "Germans, we insist that the Jews get out." —AFP.

Rugby Union

London, Dec. 25.

Results of today's Rugby Union matches were:
Aberavon v Manesteg, postponed.
Llanelli 9, Universities Athletic 8.
Neath v London Welsh, postponed.
Swansea v Wexham, postponed.
Edinburgh Academicals 9, London Scottish 13. —Reuter.

MAN KILLS WIFE, BABY ON XMAS MORNING

Richmond, Miss., Dec. 25.

James Magill broke into the apartment of his divorced wife, Sherry, and shot her and their 15-month-old daughter, Lee Ann, to death as she held the child in her arms this Christmas morning, Police said.

Magill then shot himself with the same rifle in a suicide attempt. He was taken to the hospital with a critical wound in his chest.

"Go ahead, finish the job," he pleaded with officers as they lifted him on an ambulance stretcher.

The mother, hugging the child to her, was found lying in the bathtub. Magill was lying in the kitchen. Police said the woman had called them a few minutes before, saying Magill was attempting to break in. The shooting occurred before Police could get there. —AP.
